THE EDITOR'S LETTER

The Gift of Love

Since it's February, we're showing you how much we love you by offering you a sampling of stuff that we, um, love—such as dive bars. The drinks are cheaper, which increases our chances of finding a romance that can stand the test of time (read: till the end of happy hour). So we scoured the country looking for the best places for you to pass out in style.

You know what will help you sober up fast? Sex! That's what people who have it tell us, anyway. They also tell us it will cost us just 50 dollars to get some for ourselves—but where are we going to steal that kind of money? To deal with this and other sexual dilemmas you may encounter, we've enlisted the aid of our Sex Spy (above), who, in her new advice column (p.126), offers her undercover expertise to help you beef up your bedroom intelligence. Don't thank us—just lend us 50 bucks.

Also check out all the other stuff in this issue that makes life a cherished gift—like Deion Sanders, wacky animals and, of course, women! There's the incomparable Tara Reid! Jill Wagner of Punk'd! The new That '70s Show girl, Christina Moore, whom we like to compare to...Tara Reid! Then there are the winners of our national search for the hottest girls next door. You voted them in; we voted off their clothes. Hey, it's all about aesthetics. The point? We like girls. We don't care what you've heard. Seriously, nobody said anything about us, did they?

Puppéto

The Press-Junket Puppet

Our cash-conscious clown took time off to ride Kawasaki Jet Skis in Nevada's Lake Mead and gamble in Vegas with Stuff's Jonathan Stern. Much love to the good people at Freeman/McCue PR, who dealt with Puppéto's fear of water and his desire to always bet on black.

Puppéto says: "Here's an ample woman sunbathing on a Kawasaki three-seater. She could've used a fourth seat, if you ask me! I didn't really try to socialize on the trip (the guy from Jet Ski Monthly was all hands), but it was fun racing on the lake and staying at a plush and paid-for suite at the Hard Rock Hotel. Oh, and Jon enjoyed taking the rap for my card-counting at the Bellagio."

STUFF OUTTAKES

This Round's on Us

One of the appeals of our annual Best Dive Bars roundup (p.66) is nominating a local haunt and then getting free drinks in exchange for free publicity. Or so we thought. Our New York City winner, Doc Holliday's, let us conduct a photo shoot on their sticky floor but was not inclined to allow us to guzzle gratis, resulting in a bill of $650. Way to make us spend grandma's prescription money, Doc Holliday's! Awww, c'mere—we can't stay mad at you!

PLEASURE TO BURN

Dear Stuff

If it weren't for you, our stamp collection would be totally lame.

Crouching Krista, hidden dragon

I just received your December issue. When I saw the cover...wow! Krista Allen: green eyes, red bustier and black garters—all I can say is OMG! And to think a friend got me hooked on her when she was on Days of Our Lives. She is the most gorgeous woman alive, and I love the dragon tattoo on her back.

—Chris, via e-mail

We're surprised and more than a little offended that you didn't mention our clever cover lines. Sigh. Why do we even bother? (This is the part where you console us, and then we cry, make love and act surprised when we wake up in each other's arms.)

He's nuts for peanuts!

In your December issue, I read that former U.S. Senator Barry Goldwater once used peanut butter as a substitute for shaving cream. Having run out of shaving cream myself and being too lazy to go buy some more, I decided to try it. Let's just say, I am not going back to shaving cream ever again. Thanks, Barry!

—William Candelario, via e-mail

That's fantastic, William. Until we get a craving for a Fluffernutter. Then what? Without the peanut butter, it's just a marshmallow sandwich, you inconsiderate prick.

Bet this would stick to the wall if I threw it, thought the razor. Cool! A thinking razor!

Car wreck

Feel free to mislabel scantily clad women all you want, but please don't screw up car names. Bam Margera probably doesn't own a Ferrari Madini, because you just made that one up. More likely [he owns] a Modena (about $180,000) or a Mondial (less likely; those were '80s chintz) or possibly a Maranello (but only if the editor was really out to lunch). Hey, I'm just a car guy keeping you on your toes. Now if you'll excuse me, I have to go for a drive in my Porsche Carvera.

—Nick Johnson, via e-mail

Your Carvera doesn't impress us, Nick. We prefer the understated style and sensible price tag of our shopping cart, thank you very much. And our pushing stick doubles as a broom. Except when it is a broom. Then it doubles as a pushing stick. ▷▷▷

Can't we all agree that sitting Indian-style would be more comfortable—and possibly racist?

WIN AN HP POCKET PC!

In today's corporate world, people place too much importance on organization and punctuality. It would be great if we could all get paid to drive aimlessly around the Australian desert, lawless and in search of gasoline...like in that movie Annie. But for those who conform, the HP's iPAQ h2215 pocket PC is the ultimate tool. This integrated Bluetooth PDA allows you to send e-mail, browse the Web, play games (like Hexacto's Links) and remotely control audio and video equipment. Want it? For a chance to win, send us a nice note (such as, "Do you like me? Check yes or no") to Letters, Stuff, 1040 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10018, or e-mail us at letters@stuffmagazine.com. For rules, see the Credits page.

Heat about Chernobyl

I was a bit upset with your December issue's humor about the Ukraine in regard to Chernobyl (Filter). My girlfriend is Ukrainian and is a great woman. Her family is also great. Their food is excellent, as well. And one more great thing about Ukies is that they can all drink with the best of them. Next time, find another place to make jokes about and leave the Ukrainians alone!

—Jason Wainer, via e-mail

You're right, Jason. Ukranians are great—particularly as crane operators. They just suck at managing the catastrophic side effects of an energy source that turned a community into a desolate wasteland for hundreds of years. But borscht rocks!

This crane operator is in the market for a dashboard hula dancer. Money is no object.

Double talk

Just turn to the Lord of the Bar section and look at the picture of Christy and Kristi. There's your definition of STUFF: Sexy Twins' Uninhibited Fantasies Fulfilled! Any pic of these two would fulfill a guy's fantasy.

—John J. McAneney, Florence, S.C.

Acronyms are fun! But not as much fun as drunken unprotected sex. Or DUS, as we call it around the office.

Existential dilemma

A copy of your magazine came to my address by accident yesterday. After looking through it, I concluded that there was no reason for it to exist.

—Alan De Wolfe, author of South of Manila and Attack of the Koto Maru, Corning, N.Y.

Holy fucking shit! The author of Attack of the Koto Maru wrote us a letter! Based on the book's Amazon.com ranking (1,711,529—but poised to move up!), this might be the first time anyone has actually read anything you've written, Mr. De Wolfe. But who cares? You get laid all the time because you're a writer, right? ▷▷▷

INAPPROPRIATE STUFF

Royal Flush!

The people at American Standard claim that they're excited about their new toilet technology. But after failing to answer our questions, we think they're just full of shit.

From an actual press release:
Toilet users of America, toss out your plungers. American Standard is revolutionizing toilet technology with America's Best™ Flushing System, which is making its debut in the aptly named Champion™ toilet. By virtually eliminating clogs, overflows, plunging, handle jiggling, broken flappers, wasted water and expensive repairs, the new technology forever changes what consumers have long hated about toilets.

STUFF: Hi, this is Laura Leu from Stuff magazine. Your press release states that you're "flush with excitement" about this product. Are you?
PUBLICIST: We are! We're superexcited!

Not as excited as I am! My dumps are usually triple flushers!
So...you...might...be interested in one of these? Is that what you're saying?

Yeah, because the Champion toilet will allow my turd to enter Pooville after only one flush, right?
Mmm-hmmm.

Toilet paper chafes me, so I usually wipe with lamb's wool. Will the toi-toi suck that down, too?
Um, it depends. I'd have to put you in touch with someone from American Standard to talk more about that.

Did you test it with different densities of poo?
Again, I'd have to put you in touch with someone from American Standard.

OK. Just have them call me!
[Editor's note: After much waiting, nobody called, and our toilet remains clogged.]

As we learned in history class, these arrows are part of the Underground Railroad.

LETTER OF THE MONTH

Fine apple

I am Randy the Helpful Pineapple's biggest fan! I was outraged to see how deeply hurt Randy was in the December issue (Letters) because no one bothers to show appreciation for this adorable pineapple. It is obvious that his lack of fan mail is causing his low self-esteem. Perhaps you could do something to help him find a girlfriend. I saw a really cute papaya at the grocery store yesterday that he might be interested in. I know there is someone out there that is "ripe" for Randy.

—Diane Whitney, via e-mail

Randy the Helpful Pineapple says:
"Thanks for trying to help a pineapple find a little love, Diane. If only the light syrup I'm canned with were as sweet as you. Oh, and here's a Samsung mobile phone. That's the appreciative gist!"

LETTERS

No matter how much we begged, she refused to sit on the couch with us. Apparently, some girls are too cool for guys covered in Cheez Doodle dust.

Bikini drought

Amazing spread of Rachel Bilson ("Outrageously Cute," December). Too bad her show, The O.C., is entering the fall and winter seasons and she probably won't be wearing any more skimpy bikinis! At least I'll have her pics to keep me warm during the coming cold months.

—Alan M. Danzis, Berkeley Heights, N.J.

Glossy magazine pictures are an excellent way to keep warm. They burn cleaner than natural gas and are plentiful. Look! There's a magazine tree right over there! (That's what we call newsstands.)

Dot's all, folks

Hey, I did that connect-the-dots you guys had on the back page (December). Assholes.

—Greg, via e-mail

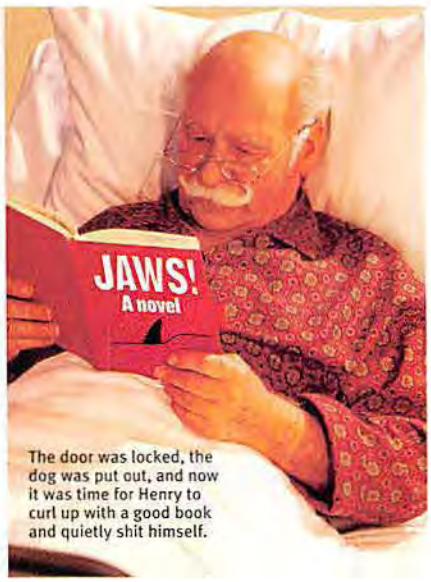
Hey! Do you kiss your mother with that mouth, Greg? Really? That's oddly arousing. We mean, um...well, we mean that it's oddly arousing.

Spoiler alert

I don't think it was a coincidence that I just happened to be reading Peter Benchley's old novel Jaws at the time I bought your December issue. On page 88 of your magazine ("Jaws V: The Vacation"), I found a story that told me the entire ending of the book that I had spent weeks enjoying. I was horrified and outraged by this discovery. So thank you for telling me that the shark dies from asphyxiation and that Richard Dreyfuss' wife-cheating character, Hooper, gets killed. You saved me from a great waste of time.

—Danny, Las Vegas

If you're interested, we also have some fan fiction in which Quint and Brody discover the true meaning of Christmas. We'll keep the ending a secret. (Hint: It involves the ghost of Jaws and a magical top hat.)



The door was locked, the dog was put out, and now it was time for Henry to curl up with a good book and quietly shit himself.

STUFF ANSWERS OTHER MAGAZINES' LETTERS

From the January 2004 issue of Hustler

I have been a Hustler reader for years, but was especially impressed with the wonderful spread in the October 2003 issue ("Cassidy and Melody: Office Break"). As a lesbian, I would definitely like to see more hot strap-on action between gorgeous girls. Thanks for years of great entertainment.

Here's a contrasting viewpoint: How about less hard-core lesbian sex? Hey, don't scoff! Our workplace counselor once told us that there's no such thing as a bad idea. Then we played trust-building games.

THE ONLY STUFF THAT MATTERS

Uh, Sir Isaac Newton called. He said you guys are making him look like an asshole!

Balancing

"Oh, sure. You can play all day with your little bird friends, but you can't call your mother once in a while to say hello?" said his mother from an adjacent tightrope.

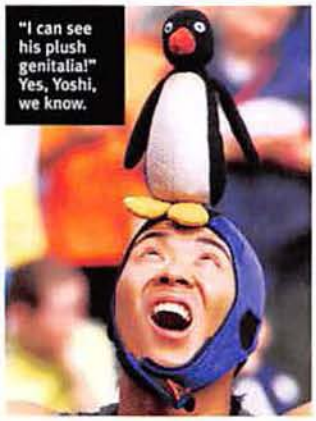
"Who says I have Alzheimer's?" crowed Abe. "Hey...what the hell am I doing up here?"



"I can see his plush genitalia!" Yes, Yoshi, we know.

No one seemed to care that Monique had lost consciousness. Hey! There was balancing to enjoy!

Nerd Crack, aka Collectible Toys

Our nerdy roommate Travis gives us a rundown of the best toys in the universe. And, yes, he's single.

"Borgy borgy borgy borg," said the Swedish Chef, relating the story of the time he did two chicks at once.

"What's that ya got there? An Ewok?" asked our aunt who stopped paying attention to pop culture in 1988.

What the hell did you kids do to Mr. Clean?

SWEDISH KITCHEN $35

Even non-Muppet fans can appreciate how great this toy looks. You almost never got to see the bottom of the Muppets on The Muppet Show (you'd spot the puppeteer, stupid), so the toy company had to create the lower half of almost every character, and the Swedish Chef looks as though Jim Henson himself came back to life to design it. The only drawback is that everyone who sees it will try to do their "hilarious" Swedish Chef impression. Feel free to hit these people. Hard.

ELECTRONIC TALKING GOLLUM $8

This new Talking Gollum from Toy Biz is pretty sweet. One button makes Gollum speak in the kind and friendly Smeagol voice. Another button makes him talk in the creepy and mean Gollum voice. Because the character has a dual personality, the toy comes with two faces that you can switch, depending on your mood. If you're like me, you'll always display the mean face. Why? Because my life sucks, and in 20 minutes, I need to get back to work at Best Buy. I'm a bitter man.

PULP FICTION TOYS $24

I've always wanted an anally raped action figure! This is one of the new Pulp Fiction toys from NECA, and it's just what I need to make the most offensive diorama ever. NECA has re-created almost every major character from the movie—even the drug-dealing Lance, who comes with a bowl of cereal. The characters come in four different sets that represent different scenes from the movie. These toys are great for scaring my cool roommate and remaining celibate. —Travis Roper

Seconds later, the officer comically lost his balance and fell into the pond. He even caught dysentery!

DO-IT-YOURSELF DEER

Hunters, beware: Some of the helpless animals you kill are really helpless robots.

Robots can be used for more than just slave labor and unconditional love. They can also help to catch illegal hunters. Game warden Doug Marshall (pictured) uses decoy deer to capture poachers in Ontario. RoboDeer is made of foam and real deerskin, and you can wiggle its head and tail by remote control. The warden sets up the deer alongside roads in no-hunting zones and waits for stupid hunters to strike. So far, 27 baddies have been busted, but RoboDeer has been hit only four times, meaning that these nefarious Ted Nugents have stinky aim. Bang! Whoa! We just felt something whiz by our head. Too bad it hit the intern.

Quick! Shoot! While he's distracted! Aim for the stupid hat!

JUSTIN GUARINI

Just because you were a runner-up on American Idol doesn't mean you can break the law. Yes, Justin, we're talking to you. You had a car accident last March, and we're happy that you paid the fine and the court fees, but now the couple you hit is suing you for more than $100,000. They say you were driving too fast while reading a newspaper. A newspaper, Justin? That's not how we raised you. Is this true? You can tell us. We're not mad, just disappointed. Also? You're a failure.

"I acclaim this!" said a critic. Wow. That guy sure has opinions!

ARRESTED DEVELOPMENT

Arrested Development is not only the name of a pretentious group that had one hit album in the early '90s, but it's also the title of a hilarious new show on Fox. And since we're pop-culture savvy, we know that when two things share the same name, a lawsuit is inevitable. The group is suing the network because rapper Todd "Speech" Thomas said Fox's use of the name will "dilute the meaning" of the group's name. Meanwhile, Toad the Wet Sprocket is still doing nothing.

"Beetlejuice, Beetlejuice, Beetlejuice!" he said after we gave him a dollar. Poor guy.

ALEC BALDWIN

Scared that he might become the next Dustin Diamond, Alec Baldwin is desperately trying to save his career, and he doesn't care who gets hurt in the process. "Gee, if a kid fell through that ice and I jumped out and saved that little child, everyone would love me," he declared in a recent interview in W. Maybe he was joking, but we're still not letting our kids play at Baldwin's Outdoor Thin-Ice Skating Rink. And we're not letting them go to his Shadow Film Festival, which is also held on a sheet of thin ice.

"Go ahead! Throw the cocktail wiener at me! I can catch anything in my mouth!"

OPRAH WINFREY

If you watch Oprah, you're either out of work, in college and skipping your public-speaking class because it's a joke, or you're just confused. You also might be a basket case. A new study suggests that there is a link between stress and watching the show. It's not clear if Oprah Winfrey herself is causing the stress, but since we don't like women in positions of power, we're just going to assume that it's all her fault. Oh, and the man who conducted the study admits that it has no real scientific basis.

ASK THE TEMP

We told Rosaria that she doesn't have to answer the phones as long as she continues to answer your questions. Her reply: "What phones?"

Why can't we tickle ourselves?

First of all, I am so ticklish! Like, just the idea of my boyfriend, Padraic, or some guy on the bus tickling me makes me totally freak out! I'm freaking out right now, just thinking about it! But you're right: When I try to tickle myself, I don't laugh or anything. At first, I thought it was just me—like, that my tickling technique was bad. But then when I tickle-attacked Padraic, he laughed and laughed until he caught my wrists and threatened to rip my arms out of their sockets! So, one of the main things with tickling is surprise—you don't know when or where the next tickle is going to be. Plus, there's a bit of panic, like the idea that the person tickling you is some psycho killer or that the tickles are actually spiders or tiny aliens crawling all over you. But when we try to tickle ourselves, we know there's no reason to freak—our brain has already informed us of what to expect and has even canceled out some of the sensation. But you know what's funny? My dad is, like, a total schizo, and he can tickle himself. He can't tell the difference between stimulating himself and having someone else do it! What's even funnier is that schizophrenia is a debilitating disease that shouldn't be joked about!

Who's the Murphy in Murphy's Law?

You know, I always figured it was Eddie Murphy who said, "If anything can go wrong, it will," in one of the Beverly Hills Cop movies, right before stupid Judge Reinhold did something dumb. But legend has it that the Murphy in Murphy's Law might actually be this Air Force engineer named Captain Edward A. Murphy. And what's weird is that he didn't invent Murphy's Law by himself—it actually took three people to come up with it. The story goes like this: In 1949, Murphy, an Air Force doctor named John Paul Stapp and a project manager named George E. Nichols were doing deceleration experiments at Edwards Air Force Base in California. Stapp had been subjected to 40 g's in one test, but someone's screwup resulted in no readings being recorded. Murphy then supposedly said, "If there are two or more ways to do something, and one of those results in a catastrophe, then someone will do it that way." Nichols included this in a collection of "laws" he'd been keeping and named it after Murphy. Which is sort of like what happens to me: Padraic is always telling people I say things like, "I am in love with my boss and want to do him," but really when I say stuff like that, I'm just talking rhetorically. (As if Padraic even knows what rhetorically means!)

Why is the sea salty?

I asked this geologist guy who comes in, like, every day to check on his subscription, and he told me that all water has "salts"—dissolved chemicals—even though not all water tastes salty. But since sea water is about 220 times saltier than fresh water, it's pretty safe to say that it's salty. The guy told me that most of the sea's salts come from the earth's crust's rocks (which break due to weathering and erosion) and from rains and streams (which take mineral washings to the sea). And even though fresh water flows into seas via rivers and rain, salts become concentrated in the sea because the sun's heat vaporizes almost-pure water at the sea's surface and leaves salts behind. Then he asked for my supervisor.

"I don't want to seem like a name dropper, but I totally used to hang with Arsenio."

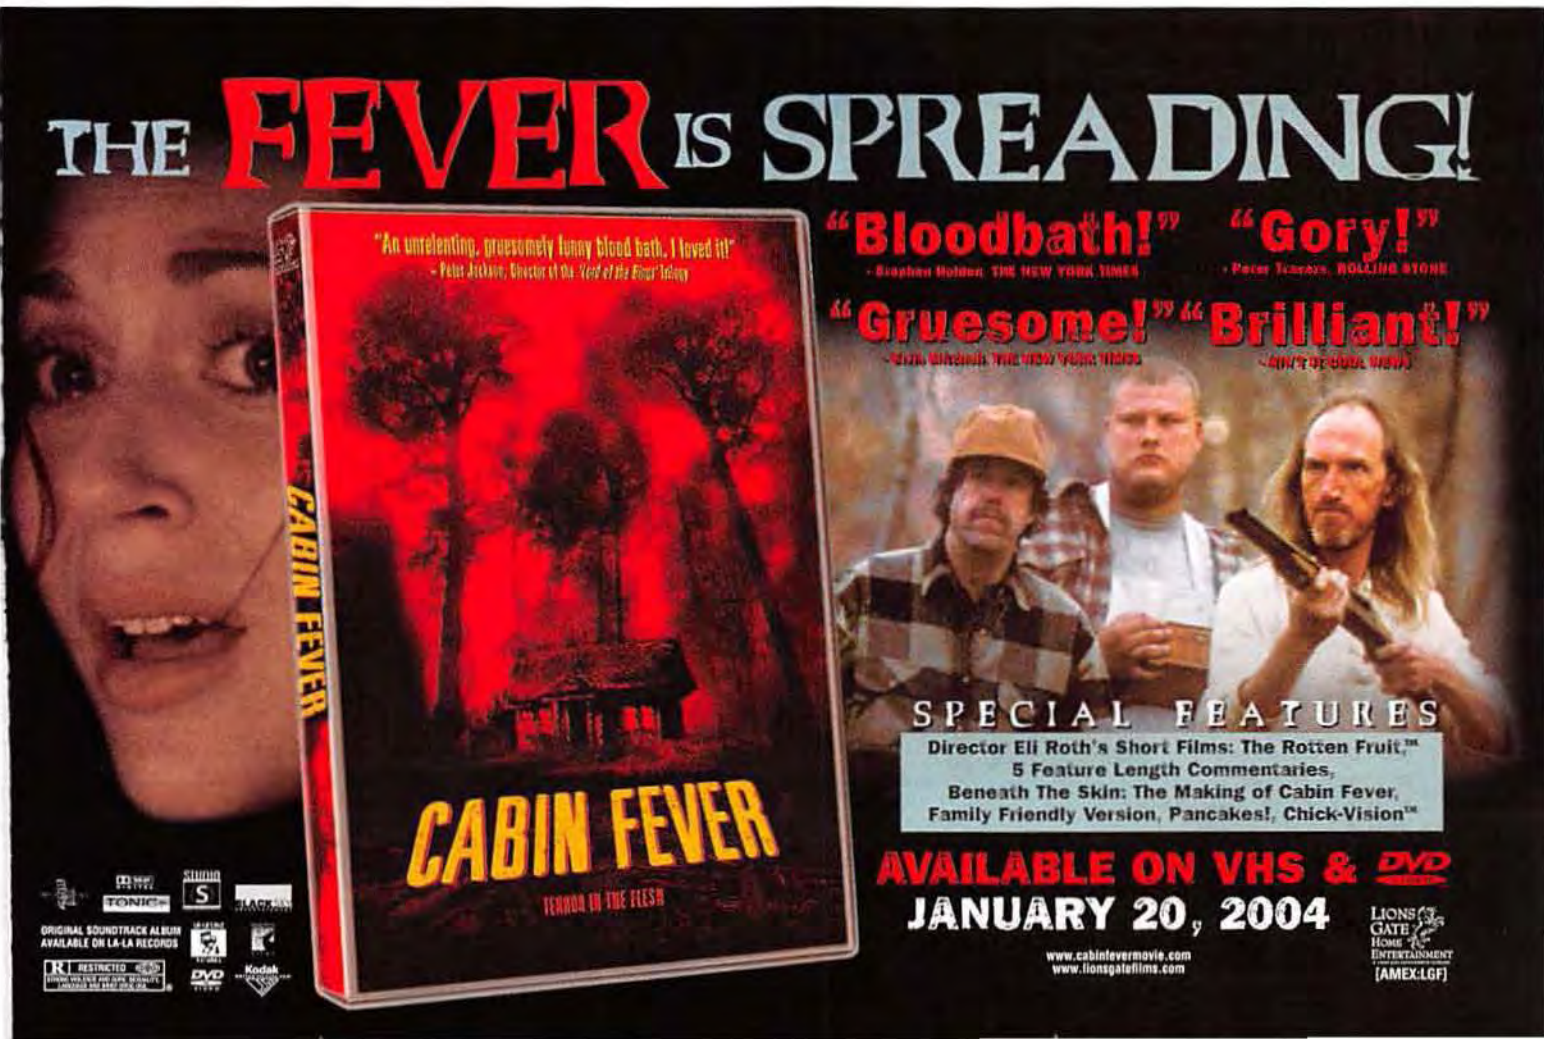
Thar He Shows...Off

Is he upside down? Is this photograph sideways? Is modern science flawed by its failure to properly recognize metaphysics? Find the answer to two of these questions below.

It took us a few minutes to grasp just what was going on in this picture. At first we thought it was a computer image. Then we thought it was a mannequin. Then we cried—a lot. (Whenever we can't figure something out, we bawl like a baby.) Actually, this is artist Philippe Ramette in his current art project, The Balcony (image courtesy of Galerie Xippas, Paris). After lowering his balcony-boat into Victoria Harbour, near Hong Kong, he had only a few seconds to position himself for photographer Marc Domage's shot before the boat started sinking. Ramette is creating a series of these staged photos in exciting locations all over the world. The image of the balcony came to him in a dream, and with funding from Alliance Française, he was able to make his dream come true. (Ironically, we've always dreamed of writing about balcony art.) The effect is an unusual and eye-catching image that makes us think of the time our house tipped over and then sank. Yep, we're crying again.



William "THE REFRIGERATOR" Perry

There was a time when weighing 300-plus pounds was a big deal in the NFL. And the Fridge was the biggest deal of them all. The second-biggest deal? The Sports Illustrated sneaker phone. BY JORDAN MATUS

He loved football, but what he really wanted was to dive into a pile of Twinkies.

ORIGINALLY dissed by Bears defensive coordinator Buddy Ryan as a "wasted draft choice," the Fridge became the most beloved NFL icon of the '80s. A cross between Fat Albert and someone even fatter, he could pancake an entire offensive line, yet the six-foot-two-inch, 308-pound defensive tackle could also bench-press 465 pounds and dunk a basketball.

Despite being a rookie on a 1985 Bears team that included press-mooning QB Jim McMahon and Hall of Fame running back Walter Payton, the Fridge stood out—and not just in the lunch line. Sweet Willie was the model for an oddly svelte G.I. Joe action figure and was the subject of a Fat Boys single, "Chillin' with the Refrigerator." He also had his own cheerleaders, the Refrigerettes, each of whom weighed at least 200 pounds.

In the 1986 Super Bowl, Perry was sent in as the world's largest running back and scored on a one-yard plunge late in the third quarter, leading the Bears to their only Super Bowl victory.

Perry retired in 1996 and now lays bricks for his subcontracting company in Aiken, South Carolina. He enhanced his larger-than-life image by participating in Celebrity Boxing II in 2002 and in Nathan's Famous hot-dog-eating contest in 2003. Yes, sir, the Fridge is one appliance the Maytag repairman will never need to fix. Mostly because the actor who portrayed him is dead.

The Fridge came unplugged during Celebrity Boxing II on May 22, 2002, when he was outpointed by seven-foot-seven-inch Manute Bol, despite the fact that Bol is at least 110 pounds lighter and suffers from severe arthritis. Was the decision the result of Bol's incredible 102-inch reach, you ask? That's a very good question! Good job...so, yeah. We done here?

Servings per Fridge: Size in tons may vary, depending on day

When asked for an explanation about his putrid performance in Nathan's Famous hot-dog-eating contest* in 2003 (only four hot dogs consumed), the Fridge replied, "I wasn't hungry." Here's how Perry failed to stack up against the champion, 145-pound Takeru Kobayashi, who ate 44.5 hot dogs in 12 minutes:

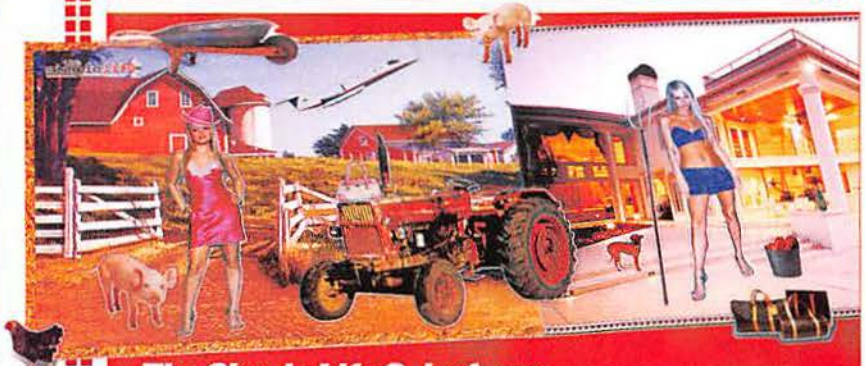
Our monthly roundup of the weird and the feared.

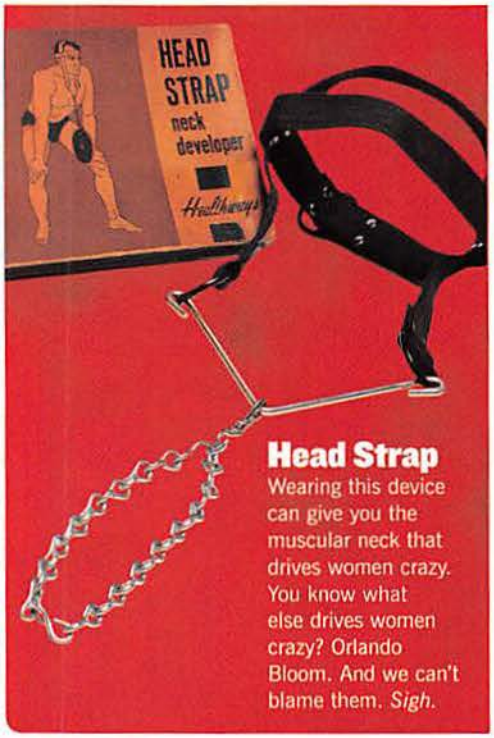


The Simple Life Colorforms

Part toys, part promotional materials, these Colorforms not only make us want to watch the Paris Hilton–Nicole Richie show, but they also instill in us a godlike feeling of power over the women. Put them on the tractor, dress them up—you can do anything you want with these pieces of plastic. That's right, Supreme Court, anything. Keep your damn hands off our bodies!

Toastabags

Toast crumbs in your oven got you down? No? Well, they should. So to cure the blues we've just invented, put your bread in this bag, put the bag in the toaster, and a few minutes later, you'll be treated to a relatively clean machine and some hardened bread! Neat, huh? What's that? We totally suck? Well, that's as cruel as it is true.



Head Strap

Wearing this device can give you the muscular neck that drives women crazy. You know what else drives women crazy? Orlando Bloom. And we can't blame them. Sigh.

Sphincterine Ass-tringent

According to scientists, your butt is a dirty and smelly place. But the Minty Ass Company has found a solution to a-hole pollution: a combination of natural ingredients such as aloe vera and menthol. But be warned: If you tell people you use this product, everyone will think you are really, really awesome.

Candy Tattoos

Stick them on your body and then lick them off. Then...well, that's about it. Sooo...how about this weather, huh?

WIN! Hey, readers: Own Toastabags? Great, but someone already sent those in. But send us something just as craptastic, such as a duck-shaped lion statue. If we print it, you'll win a $180 Nike Portable Sports Audio MP3 player by Philips. Send it to: Crap Editor, Stuff, 1040 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10018. USELESS FACTS

About 100,000 gallons of water are used to make one car. Coincidentally, the same amount of water is used to fill a 100,000-gallon swimming pool.

Cats can carry the SARS virus and might be able to infect humans with it. They pick up SARS because they think it's a ball with a bell inside.

 Pregnant women are nature's way of saying, "This chick has had sex."

At least he died peacefully. Or he was burned alive in agonizing, unimaginable pain. What are we, forensic scientists?

Working Stiffs

What happens when you die? You hunt for brains—or your body can take part in one of these fun experiments.

Plant yourself at the Body Farm

At the University of Tennessee's Forensic Anthropology Facility, better known as the Body Farm, visitors can find about 40 human corpses—lying in the sun, buried in shallow graves, covered with brush or submerged in ponds. It's not some sick scavenger hunt. Students and professors use the two-acre facility to study how decomposition affects the body's organs and tissues. This helps law-enforcement authorities and medical examiners pinpoint time of death. Since 1980, about 500 bodies have made their last stop here.

For one project, a researcher set up night-vision cameras to study animals looking for a late-night snack. "The facility is fenced in, so your average dog can't get in," says Richard L. Jantz, PhD, director of the center. "But by using the cameras, we discovered that animals like buzzards and raccoons were slipping inside and participating in the bodies' decomposition. Turns out, there's all kinds of action going on here in the middle of the night." At last, you can be part of a happening after-hours scene!

Be a crash-test dummy!

Since 1939, Michigan's Wayne State University has been conducting "impact-tolerance research" using human corpses. Think of them as crash-test cadavers.

Bodies donated for medical research and education—dressed in leotards and hoods to protect their identities—have sensors implanted (see X-ray, above) and are then hit or thrown over cars at mock intersections. Or they're cracked in the head, chest and other parts with a 50-pound, six-inch pendulum the approximate size of a steering-wheel hub.

Albert King, the director of Wayne State's Bioengineering Center, says they go through about 20 bodies a year. Unfortunately, corpses are becoming increasingly scarce. Researchers need cadavers younger than 65, because they represent the typical driving public. It's something to think about next time you commit suicide. —Sam Boykin

LORD OF THE BAR

Double Shot

Nothing warms our cockles more than a hot toddy on a winter's day. Wait, Twins, where are you going? We said cockles!

HOT TODDY

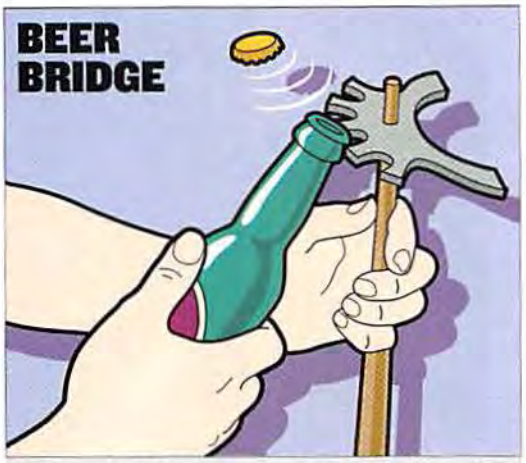
1.5 oz. Bacardi 8 • 1 stick rock candy • juice of half a lemon • 2 cloves • 1 small stick of cinnamon • 8 oz. hot water

STEP 1
CHRISTY: Toddies are traditionally made with brandy or whiskey, but we use aged rum to make it nice and sweet.
KRISTI: And, believe me, Christy is very sweet. On weekends, she volunteers as a nude model for art classes at the community college.
CHRISTY: Unlike Kristi, who charges admission.

STEP 2
KRISTI: Slice a lemon in two and squeeze the juice of one half into a mug. Then add the rum.
CHRISTY: Also, add two cloves and the cinnamon stick before you pour in the hot water.
KRISTI: If you get confused, don't worry. Christy is always confused, and she can still make a toddy.

STEP 3
CHRISTY: Stir the toddy with the rock candy. Or just eat it right off the stick, like I do.
KRISTI: Ever since we were kids, you've loved putting rigid candy in your mouth. You just loved sucking!
CHRISTY: So did you. The only difference was that the candy didn't love you back, crater face.
KRISTI: They're love pocks!

BAR SECRETS



YOU KNOW WHEN you're in a bar losing all your money playing pool because you suck at pool? And how when you're looking around and wondering why there aren't any women in the place, you see something that looks like a rake hanging next to all the warped, tipless cues? That device, known as a bridge, is intended to help with difficult-to-reach shots. But for you (since, we repeat, you suck) it has only one use: opening bottles. Grasp the stick firmly near the top, with the butt end on the floor. Stick the bottle cap between any two of the slots and yank down. Then rub that blue, chalky cube over the top of the bottle for added flavor, just like the good players do.

First Lady

Courtney Peldon

This striking star of Boston Public makes us miss our high-school days. (Our mock-trial team was undefeated!)

PHOTOGRAPH BY GIULIANO BEKOR

STUFF: You were on the sitcom Harry and the Hendersons. Do you believe in Bigfoot?
COURTNEY: I do, actually. And I believe in the Loch Ness monster and aliens. I think that legends come from reality.

Do you believe in John Lithgow? [Editor's note: He starred in the movie version. You really should know that!]
I love John Lithgow! I worked with him on 3rd Rock. I think he definitely exists.

I'm going to name a few of your former costars. Please describe the level of sexual tension between you and each of them. First up: Jonathan Taylor Thomas.
JTT was adorable, cute, sweet...I mean, totally hot. But we were just friends.

Ed O'Neill.
[Laughs] I was 13. I was just impressed that he was the dad on Married...with Children.

Daniel Baldwin.
That scratchy, gravelly voice—totally hot. I was 17, so it was more of a schoolgirl crush than Oh, I have to sleep with him.

What else do you find attractive?
Long hair and a good nose. It doesn't matter if it's big or small or whatever—there just has to be something cute about it.

Would you agree that the high school in Boston Public is the most unrealistic one on the planet?
I've been home-schooled my whole life, so this is the closest to real school I've ever been. It's unrealistic in the sense that some of the story lines are really wild, but I think they keep a lot of it close to home.

Speaking of home, your sister is also a hot young actress. Is there a third, ugly sibling that the family keeps hidden away?
Several, actually. [Laughs] It's just us. There won't be any crawling out of the woodwork.

Well, if one ever turns up, I've got dibs! —Mike Olson

ALBUM OF THE MONTH

THE CRYSTAL METHOD

LEGION OF BOOM V2

These are crazy times. Everywhere you turn, DJs have found homes with bands—for example, Sugar Ray and the Deftones. (The DJs tried apartments at first, but you know how co-op boards can be.) Only L.A.'s Crystal Method seem to fully grasp the true purity and visceral stupidity of rock music. And that we're saving our virginity for that special someone.

But the duo doesn't do it alone. Scott Kirkland and Ken Jordan get help from guitarist Wes Borland, whose aggressive playing fits the Method like a tight muscle T-shirt. Take "Born Too Slow," on which Borland wiggles like a drunken stripper, or "Weapon of Mass Distortion," on which he rips as hard as Metallica. And more friends join them! Enter former Roots rapper Rahzel on the banging "American Way" and even actress Milla Jovovich, who chimes in on "I Know It's You." (She's not always filming a Resident Evil movie, people.)

While all the guests give the Crystal Method added depth, the techno team does pretty well on its own. Legion is filled with pulsating soundscapes and whirring sound effects that will make you dizzy. Don't worry—good dizzy, not "I just swallowed a gallon of dishwashing liquid" dizzy. —Jon Wiederhorn

SOUND ADVICE

		THE BUZZ	DID YOU KNOW?	WE SAY
	AIR TALKIE WALKIE VIRGIN ★★★★	This duo once wrote spacey electronica. Now they sound more sedate. It's like when we started taking Ritalin, but without all the forged prescriptions.	Sofia Coppola had the group score The Virgin Suicides and put one of their songs in Lost in Translation. We'd call her an Air-head, but that'd be too clever.	The melodies are beautiful, but the way Air blend sounds is unsettling. As is the way they blend frappés. We've never seen so many lumps!
	DIZZEE RASCAL BOY IN DA CORNER MATADOR/XL ★★★★	English rappers usually blow, but this teenager won the Mercury Music Prize. That puts him in the same league as Talvin Singh. That's right—the Talvin Singh.	Before making this impressive album, Dizzee was stabbed four times. Elsewhere, an unimpressed 50 Cent just smiles. (He's having sex with a groupie!)	He sounds like Ali G rapping over a broken sample, but the beats are fresh—unlike that doughnut we ate. Apparently, sprinkles aren't usually furry.
	BROTHER JT3 HANG IN THERE, BABY DRAG CITY ★★★	Preaching at the pulpit of garage fuzz and folk rock, Brother rains fire and brimstone on your sinful ass. Um, we mean sinful bum. (Sorry, God.)	Around 1990, John Terlesky recorded an album called Descent about Jesus going to hell to free the saints, and the Brother was born.	JT's guitars gurgle, and his vocals are rough yet sedate as he unravels tales of redemption and pain. It's like O Brother, Where Art Thou? with good music!
	ELBOW CAST OF THOUSANDS V2 ★★★	These lads play with more intensity than most melancholy British bands. So go get their new album at Wal-Mart! (Wal-Mart is an advertiser, right?)	It's anecdote time! The band got in trouble when statues of the figures on the cover were placed near a highway and drivers mistook them for aliens.	The melodies are dark, drifting and knotted with bitterness. "Pull my ribs apart and let the sun inside," bleats Guy Garvey on "Ribcage." But no one listens.
	JONNY GREENWOOD BODYSONG CAPITOL ★★★	Radiohead's guitarist indulges his every whim on this artsy soundtrack. Die-hard fans might find it hard to listen to—especially if their stereo isn't on.	Part of the film Bodysong uses home movies to depict a person's life from birth to death. Sadly, ours just show us hitting Dad in the nuts with a Wiffle-ball bat.	Classical, tribal rock and jazz congeal on this disc, exposing Jonny at his most disjointed. Not counting that one time he separated his shoulder.
	SKRAPE UP THE DOSE RCA ★★	These scoundrels have written 11 songs that sound like Adema. Adema write songs that sound like Korn. Korn craft annoying, nu-metal trash. Any questions?	The band's last effort was the 12th-best-selling record in Japan in 2001, placing just ahead of our duet album with Sting. What can we say? We're multitalented.	If we were on a deserted island with a Walkman and this, we'd listen to it twice. Then we'd build a hovercraft and go home. What? It can't be that hard. —J.W.

ROCK THE VOTE: THE STUFF MUSIC POLL

Let's face it: 2003 is over. It's gone. It's never coming back. But that's not a bad thing. Actually, it means that it's time to look back at the last year in music with fond remembrance and biting honesty. And what better way to keep you involved (and to make our own job easier) than by letting you vote online for the 2004 Stuff Music Awards. Just go to StuffMagazine.com and vote for your favorites. The winners will be featured in our special April music issue. Or will they? (OK, they will. We're just trying to sound foreboding. We heard chicks dig it.)

Q&A

WANDA SYKES

This firecracker might be the funniest comedian on television. Or should we say comedienne? No, really. We're not sure what's appropriate.

There's no avoiding Wanda Sykes. She chips in on hilarious shows such as Curb Your Enthusiasm and Crank Yankers. There she is adding some funny to the normally straitlaced Inside the NFL. Attend our monthly meeting of the Pootie Tang Appreciation Society, and there she is making a cameo. We'd love to complain about this turn of events, but Wanda's all right in our book. So all right, in fact, that we dragged her out of a meeting so she could talk to us. Now do you doubt the sway we have in the entertainment industry? You do? Um...this just got really awkward.

STUFF: Exactly how sassy are you?
WANDA: Oh, God. That word sassy—it haunts me. I keep getting the sassy thing. It's more like that I have a low tolerance for bullshit, 'cause to me, sassy just sounds likes all attitude and no content.

You've often said that you're too busy to have a boyfriend. If that's the case, what's your favorite sex toy?
I don't have time to set aside for that, so I have to combine. So usually it's the shower. Nice, hard water pressure. Wash 'n' go, you know?

No. No, I don't! And I resent the accusation! Since you're so opinionated, do you ever act like a diva?
I don't have that type of energy. I'm so fucking lazy. I can't go around and check everybody's dressing room to make sure mine has the most shit in it.

Why was Bill Cosby such an asshole when you cohosted the 2003 Emmys?
I'm a big Cosby fan. I respect the man. But he was there to get his lifetime-achievement award. Maybe he was just all out of jokes. Maybe he was running on E, you know? He did a lifetime. He's done.

Are you offended that we didn't ask you to do a sexy photo shoot along with this interview?
Oh, God, no. America doesn't need to see that. You're trying to sell Stuff. As a matter of fact, you guys should pay me to keep my clothes on. Let me just stick with the funny. The funny works.

It most certainly does, Wanda. It most certainly does. —Mike Olson

THE PIGSKIN PRINCESS

WANDA ON FOOTBALL

We asked Wanda a bunch of questions about the NFL. Why? Because we have a limited conversational capacity!

Which Inside the NFL host is dumber: Dan Marino or Cris Collinsworth?
It's a toss-up. Dan looks like he's not all there, but he's a smart guy. Collinsworth, he's all lanky, and you just don't buy him. You're like, What the hell is that little chicken neck talking about?

What do you think of the ever-charming Bob Costas?
I love Costas. He's knows too much, but he's a good guy.

Did you give host Cris Carter any shit for his failed comeback attempt last season?
We actually went to his comeback game. We saw the fumble; we saw him getting knocked out. My advice for him this season was to keep his ass in the studio.

What do you think of Deion Sanders wanting to be an NFL coach?
Oh, man. I cannot see Deion coaching. What's he going to do, coach touchdown dances? Who's going to listen to Deion?

What's your take on the whole Rush Limbaugh–Donovan McNabb situation?
I feel sorry for Donovan, man. It fucked with his head. Everybody sees that he's a black man, but first he was a quarterback. Some days you're gonna suck, some days you're on a roll. Now every interception he throws, he's probably looking in the stands and just seeing everybody calling him names. "Get your black ass outta there!" I think even the NAACP called him and told him he can't fuck up anymore, 'cause it's just making us look bad.

What do you think of Kurt Warner's wife?
I just picture her kicking his ass when they get home. He's probably sitting there trying to eat his little Chunky Soup, and she's just smacking him in the back of the head. She probably beats him with the Bible—kicks his ass with some scriptures.

We know what you're thinking: What page are the girls in bikinis on?

SPOTLIGHT ON...

THE BUTTERFLY EFFECT

JANUARY 23

ASHTON KUTCHER, AMY SMART, ELDEN HENSON, MELORA WALTERS, ERIC STOLTZ

THE PLOT Before Punk'd and before his hand-holding with Demi Moore, Ashton Kutcher filmed The Butterfly Effect. It's a trippy sci-fi film that marks a departure for the young and—we'll say it—hunky actor who is best known for his role on That '70s Show. Kutcher plays Evan Treborn, a college student who has trouble recalling traumatic moments from his twisted childhood. As an adult, he learns that reading from his old journals gives him the ability to travel back to the past. With this mysterious power unlocked, he can occupy his childhood body and stop disasters from happening to both himself and his friends. But, like the time we got a tattoo of Tinkerbell on our ankle, each choice he makes has dire consequences. Evan discovers that changing the past changes the present...and not necessarily for the better. It makes us glad that we've accepted our miserable existence!

THE DIRECTORS J. Mackye Gruber and Eric Bress. They also wrote the screenplay. Never heard of them? No one else has either. But they did write Final Destination 2!

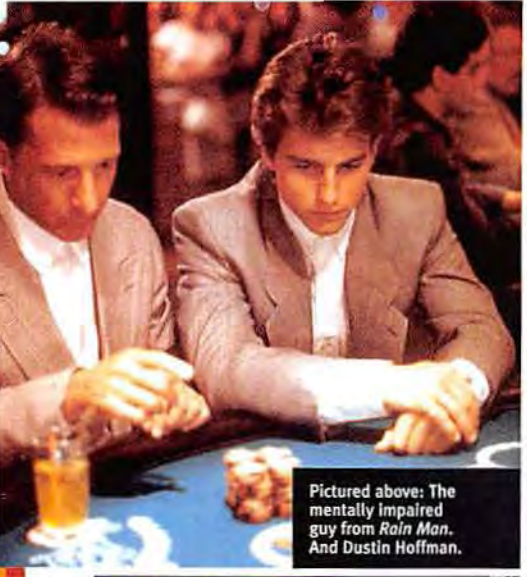
THE VERDICT It's no Citizen Kane (or even Citizen Ruth), but this psychological thriller will make you forgive Ashton Kutcher for My Boss's Daughter. The boy can act. And we're not just saying that because an editor visited the set during filming and became best friends with him. Which reminds us, check out this picture. (Kutcher is the attractive bearded man. The editor is the one who looks like an outpatient.)

We think editor Mike Olson has a crush on Ashton...because we found his diary and a condom with 4 ASHTON written on it.

HYPEMOVIES

FLICK PICKS

		THE PITCH	GHOST SAYS
	AGAINST THE ROPES FEBRUARY 6 MEG RYAN, OMAR EPPS, JOE CORTESE, TIM DALY DIR: CHARLES S. DUTTON	Based-on-a-true-story alert! A Detroit Jewish woman (Ryan) becomes a boxing manager and guides the careers of a bunch of fighters. We'd say she should handle their finances, too, but that wouldn't be kosher. Oy!
	WELCOME TO MOOSEPORT FEBRUARY 6 GENE HACKMAN, RAY ROMANO, CHRISTINE BARANSKI, MARCIA GAY HARDEN DIR: DONALD PETRIE	An ex-president (Hackman) moves to a small town and winds up in a race for mayor against a plumber (Romano). We thought about going into public service, but how could we turn down 12 grand a year? Now we're yuppies!
	50 FIRST DATES FEBRUARY 13 ADAM SANDLER, DREW BARRYMORE, SEAN ASTIN DIR: PETER SEGAL	A veterinarian (Sandler) falls for a girl with short-term memory loss (Barrymore). Now he has to win her over every time they meet. We just hope he still finds time to make wacky noises. That shtick will never get old!
	KILL BILL VOL. 2 FEBRUARY 20 UMA THURMAN, DAVID CARRADINE, DARRYL HANNAH, MICHAEL MADSEN DIR: QUENTIN TARANTINO	In part two of this smash hit, Uma Thurman tracks down and violently slays even more of the people who tried to kill her. Revenge can be sweet. The other day, we called our ex-girlfriend and hung up! Then we sobbed quietly.
	TAKING LIVES FEBRUARY 20 ANGELINA JOLIE, ETHAN HAWKE DIR: D.J. CARUSO	An FBI profiler (Jolie) tracks down a murderer who steals people's identities after he kills them. He'd do it in reverse order, but then they'd probably be like, "Please don't take my identity and then kill me." And who needs that?
	CLUB DREAD FEBRUARY 27 BILL PAXTON, JAY CHANDRASEKHAR, BRITTANY DANIEL, JORDAN LADD, LINDSAY PRICE DIR: JAY CHANDRASEKHAR	The makers of Super Troopers tell this tale of a hedonistic singles resort that's terrorized by a killer. Let's just hope the inept staff can save the day! And that we're not in the bathroom during the parts with gratuitous female nudity!



Pictured above: The mentally impaired guy from Rain Man. And Dustin Hoffman.

DVDs OF THE MONTH

RAIN MAN SPECIAL EDITION

$20 MGM HOME ENTERTAINMENT

Whoever said autism isn't entertaining should have to endure an eternity of pain in the pits of hell. (Sorry, we're in a bad mood today.) It's been 15 years since Tom Cruise showed us how wickedly he could grin, Dustin Hoffman impressed us with his proficiency at counting toothpicks and Valeria Golino somehow outshone her performance in Big Top Pee-wee. So let's walk down memory lane...DVD-style. This special edition contains a deleted scene of Hoffman and Cruise in a convenience store and audio commentary from director Barry Levinson. Visit your local DVD vendor and grab a copy. Then wait patiently in line, pay for it and take your change. (You really should know how to do all of that by now.)

IN LIVING COLOR, SEASON ONE

$40 FOX HOME ENTERTAINMENT

We've always wished we could pleasure ourselves to a paused digital image of the Fly Girls. (Don't be gross—we're talking about painting a watercolor.) And now we can! Fox's sketch-comedy show In Living Color is on DVD, so chuckle at the comic stylings of Damon Wayans, Jim Carrey and the gang as they perform hilarious skits such as Homey the Clown, Men on Films and Fire Marshal Bill. Some episodes even have commentary from Tommy Davidson! We'd invite him to come over and watch with us, but he'd probably just brag all night about being in P'Zone commercials.

"Career? Career? Hellooo? I know you're around here somewhere!"

HORROR HOEDOWN

FREDDY vs. JASON

These killers had a smackdown in Freddy vs. Jason (which, coincidentally, just came out on DVD). But who will win their Stuff face-off?

Please talk shit about your opponent.

ROBERT ENGLUND: That guy? Big, dumb and no style. No fashion sense and inarticulate. I'm talking about Jason, not Ken. Ken's actually a fucking sweetheart.

KEN KIRZINGER: Robert knows where all the best restaurants and jazz bars are in every single fucking town you go to. [Laughs] He's a great guy. But Freddy's just a mean-spirited asshole.

Have you ever ruined the taping of a scene with a loud fart?

I've done some sneakers, both in and out of makeup. I know how to muffle them. There's anatomical control.

I haven't done that, no.

How lame is Chucky the murdering doll?

I'd give Chucky a passing grade. Daredevil's lame. What the fuck? Oooh, I'm so scared. Daredevil's the lamest thing I've ever sat through in my life. I want to see Daredevil Meets Leprechaun. I'm going for the lame sweepstakes.

When Chucky came out, I thought he was really lame. But in a couple of the installments, they did a great job of making him the maniacal killer—like a Freddy or a Pinhead.

Have you ever been tempted to kill innocent people in real life?

No one can fucking drive in L.A. anymore. It doesn't matter whether it's the Hong Kong grandmother or the Valley Girl that's gotten into her mother's Valium. I wish for death all the time when I'm driving.

Being a stuntman, you're banging cars together all day, and then you have to drive home. Somebody pisses you off in traffic, and you just think, If I just tweaked him, man, he'd be right into that pole.

Have you ever made a guest appearance on the sitcom I'm with Her?

A big yes. That's me!

No.

And the winner is...sorry, were we supposed to be paying attention?

IT'S GIGGLE TIME!

These hilarious comedy DVDs make us LOL. And we're not just saying that because we love abbreviations.

LEWIS BLACK

This collection of his greatest basic-cable accomplishments is a bit tame for our liking, but Black is able to sound intelligent as well as bitter about topics as diverse as September 11 and IHOP.

GAME OF THE MONTH

DEUS EX: INVISIBLE WAR PC, XBOX EIDOS

We believe in every conspiracy theory: A second shooter on the grassy knoll; aliens in Area 51; the cast of According to Jim being Communists. And so do the makers of this game. How else can you explain a first-person sci-fi shoot-'em-up that features aliens and secret biotechnology laboratories in a dark future? Oh, yeah, it's a video game. We forgot about that!

Your choices change the game you play. (Like those Choose Your Own Adventure books you read as a kid, but with less bed-wetting. Or so we hope.) If you go in with guns blazing, you might run afoul of the law, but you will befriend other violent hoodlums. Catch a case of morals and you'll play a different game. There are also realistic physics. You can lob potted plants at enemies, but they won't do much damage—and the gardener might object. Especially if you throw hydrangeas. They're murder to grow in a dank, postapocalyptic dystopia.

The only drawback to all these choices? The temptation to make the wrong ones. You could be rewarded for being smart, but it's also fun to shoot people recklessly. Just like in our paint-ball league. (OK, it's really just us crawling through our backyard. But we still shoot anything that moves!) —Simon Munk

WEIRD FOREIGN GAME

MAD MAESTRO PS2 FRESH GAMES

Finally, a Japanese rhythm game that features classical music! As Takt, you have to save an old concert hall from getting demolished. All you need to do is assemble an orchestra and perform. When conducting, it's not just about hitting buttons at the right time. You also have to hit them with the perfect amount of force. Like our robot butler, Chauncey. It's the only way to keep him motivated. —S.M.

HYPEGAMES

THE PLAY LIST

ARMED & DANGEROUS

PC, XBOX LUCASARTS

In this adventure, a band of rebels battles an evil king. So what's new? Unusual weaponry, that's what! Take the Land Shark Cannon, which fires a shark that emerges from the ground to devour bad guys. Or the Topsy-Turvy bomb, which inverts the entire world and sends enemies flying into the sky and then plummeting back to earth. Think about it. It makes sense.

DEAD MAN'S HAND

XBOX ATARI

This first-person shooter opts out of the usual sci-fi clichés...and into some Western ones. Life in the Old West was short and mean, like a hungover Hervé Villechaize. So play poker to gain power-ups, then bust skulls in bar fights, stagecoach shoot-outs and mine-shaft battles. You can even blast the hats off of your enemies! (Yes, we're only pretending to be excited about that.)

FATAL FRAME 2: CRIMSON BUTTERFLY PS2 TECMO

When twins Mio and Myu end up in a ghost town, their only weapon is a psychic camera that they use to solve puzzles and photograph the undead to death. It might sound like Resident Evil, but the black-and-white flashbacks, creepy sounds and eerie locations make it much more mysterious. Like this stain on our sweatpants. We haven't had mustard in weeks.

MISSION IMPOSSIBLE: OPERATION SURMA PS2, XBOX ATARI

If Operation Surma were any sneakier, it would be called Splinter Cell. But this time, imitation is a good thing. (Unlike your impersonations. You don't sound anything like Shadoe Stevens!) All the stealth action you could possibly ask for is here, plus a few more gadgets for your arsenal. You didn't really think you could get by on charm alone, did you?

NINJA GAIDEN XBOX TECMO

We looked up the word gaiden all by ourselves! Apparently, it means "anecdote," or something like that. But you don't care, especially when Ryu is around to kick ninja ass. Throw shurikens, run along walls and smash people over their heads. The combat is challenging; the visuals are absolutely stunning. Or are we just delirious because we accidentally slapped ourselves in the head with nunchakus? You decide!

R: RACING EVOLUTION

GAMECUBE, PS2, XBOX NAMCO

Most women smell nice and fight like tomcats. Female tomcats! But the lovelies in this motorfest settle their rivalries by racing across 14 tracks in eight different styles. New midrace communications add to the fun, but otherwise, it's the usual mix of around-the-track skidding and eye-watering graphics. We warned you not to clean your contacts with gin. —S.M.

TOP FIVE

MEDIEVAL GAMES

Do you miss the good old days of bastions, moats and cauldrons filled with bubbling oil? Go visit your old orphanage! Then enjoy these games.

BATTLE CHESS AMIGA

Remember that scene in Star Wars where Chewbacca and R2-D2 are playing that game with the holograms that smush each other, and Chewie starts whining 'cause he's losing? Battle Chess is barely like that. In this chess game, your pieces kick your opponent's pieces' asses, and the rook is a giant stone monster. It even has the Bobby Fischer seal of approval. Well, probably.

JOUST ARCADE; ATARI 2600, 5200 AND 7800

This popular knighting competition is one of the games we remember best from our wasted youth. Joust is full of manly men riding around on ostriches trying to poke each other with big sticks. You fly from platform to platform to vanquish enemies, all while trying not to fall into a pit of lava that tries to grab you with its hands. Like our old gym teacher. (God, we miss him.)

DEFENDER OF THE CROWN AMIGA, C64, NES

King Richard has just been whacked, and some jerk-offs have swiped the Royal Crown. This aggression will not stand. So, as a Waspy Saxon lord, you suit up in armor and ride off after the villains. You get to catapult all kinds of foul crap at enemy castles, raid them and return to your lair with a virginal maiden or two. Try mesmerizing them with your fancy hand soap. Chicks dig the scent of lilacs.

SHOGUN: TOTAL WAR PC

A unique ninja twist makes Shogun shine. Use loyal ninjas to protect your land as you engage in battles with other warlords and work your way up to become a shogun in 16th-century Japan. Plus, you also get to control armies of samurai. They have that silly code-of-honor thing, which means they have to do whatever you demand. Even pick up your little sister from dance class!

HORIZONS: EMPIRE OF ISTARIA PC

Like Final Fantasy and CNBC.com before it, Horizons is an online fantasy game that lets you create communities with other players. And it borrows from Grand Theft Auto, in that the game lets you head to a pub and find a wench, whom you can pay to fondle your long sword. (Note: Stuff does not condone the use of long swords, either literally or metaphorically.) —Chris Kaye

Using songs downloaded to it from YamahaMusicSoft.com, this stringless Yamaha teaches you how to play guitar one hand at a time. And then with both hands together! In the easiest mode, strum with your right hand while the chords change themselves. Switch modes and the frets light up to show you how to play chords with your left hand. Switch modes again and do both at the same time. You can even create your own version of a song by manipulating the tempo, balance and pitch control. Call Juilliard! Remington MB 70 Titanium Beard and Mustache Trimmer $45
Forget cleaning up those clipped bits of whiskers littering the sink—this rechargeable beard and mustache trimmer has a built-in titanium vacuum that sucks up face confetti while you shave. If you want a beard that's Castro bushy but still neatly groomed, one of the MB 70's nine length settings will do the job. Setting five is the secret behind our perfectly scruffy three-day stubble. How we keep our back hair so well groomed is another secret altogether.

Sony Ericsson P900 Smartphone $500–$700
The P900 is a new version of the P800, last year's It Smartphone. At 4.5" x 2.25" x 0.95", it's a hair smaller than the P800 and has a more colorful touch screen, 48 MB of memory and an MP3 player you can use to create ring tones. A built-in camera records e-mailable MPEG-4 video clips; Bluetooth, e-mail and multimedia messaging complete the package. It's too much machine to qualify as simply a cellie, but you can make calls on it. We're calling 911 right now!

Soundmatters MAINstage Surround Sound System $330
Plop this magic box on top of your TV and, with a couple of connections, your living room will be filled with 80 watts of crisp, detailed, nearly 360-degree surround sound. No speakers all over the room; no jumble of wires. Jack it into a DVD player, a satellite, a cable box or a video-game system and everything from dialogue to subwoofer-generated thumps will emanate from various points around you. For such a compact box, the thing really drowns out the sounds of our squeals. We just love The O.C.

TOPLESS BEAUTY

2004 SAAB 9-3 CONVERTIBLE

PRICE $39,995 for the Arc; $42,500 for the Aero (shown)

THE GOODS 210 hp turbo four; five-speed manual (Arc) or six-speed manual (Aero); smart airbags; smart brakes; damn near smart everything.

SPEED Cruise to 60 mph in about seven seconds; accumulate bugs in your teeth until you reach 140 mph.

THE X FACTOR A PhD in equipment and a bombshell in power.

RAGTOPS RULE, but some convertibles can send the wrong message. Tiny, buglike flattops imply that you've been car-jacked by a French general and forced to be his personal driver. And nothing says, "We're scoring muscatel and toothless strippers tonight!" better than an old, big-ass "luxury" convertible. But Saab's 9-3 Convertible removes the guesswork from roofless cool—it's the rare ragtop that looks great and seats four.

I picked up my 9-3 Aero convertible in Copenhagen, Denmark, and sped toward western Sweden in search of ABBA CDs. Inside, the convertible is a dead ringer for the 9-3 four-door that was introduced last year, so it's major-league comfy and roomy enough for six-footers up front. (Finding room for my giant sandwiches is never easy.)

Hop into the leather seat and turn the key, and you'll immediately sense the difference—partly because Saab puts the ignition on the console between the seats and partly because it doesn't overwhelm you with noxious emissions (thanks to a turbo four-cylinder engine that drinks gas in moderation). Even so, it's anything but puny when it comes to power: The 9-3 spins out 210 horsepower, and the turbocharger sings like a commuter jet. The Aero's six-speed manual came in handy when I overtook the millions of bikes on Denmark's roads, a task I typically reserve for my poodle, Cyril.

The Saab is pretty stiff where and when it counts (for a car with its roof cut off), and it handles nicely. The smartest thing about it is its triple-lined ragtop. On a pit stop to buy an Ikea vibrator, I flipped down the top with the touch of a button. In about 20 seconds, the car slid away the soft top and stowed it cleanly underneath the hard tonneau cover. The top itself has gutters sewn in, so rain won't drool on you when you drop the windows at tollbooths. And even when the top is down, there's room in the trunk for golf bags and toy dogs. Turbulence isn't a big issue—the wind didn't rip out my hair extensions, and Saab offers a wind blocker that further reduces the breezes.

Whether you choose the luxe Arc or the sportier Aero, you can be confident that you're in one of the best four-seat convertibles for driving and sunning on this or any other planet. Except Zindotron. They really know how to make cars on Zindotron.

This is what makes a car different from a sled or a pirate.

It has a nicer ass than your girlfriend. It's shinier, too!

This sure is one jive shifter. (We're from the '70s, turkey.)

RACER CRED

We asked Indy Racing League Infinity Pro Series racer Arie Luyendyk Jr. to take the Saab for a spin. And spin he did!

"I'm six foot two, so sitting in my race car is a pretty big chore. But I was very comfortable in this: The hand controls, the shifter and the steering wheel were all in the perfect places for my height. It had a telescoping steering wheel, which I really like in a car, because I like to have the wheel close to me but don't like to feel that I'm sitting with my legs cramped. I took it around the streets of L.A., where I got in about 30 seconds of high-speed driving. I was going fast around the corners, but the traffic was pretty busy. I got up to about 120 mph easily. The car felt like it had a lot of power off the line because of the turbo. For its class, it's fast. I'm not usually a big convertible fan, but the top came down in less than 20 seconds, and it was hidden underneath a cowling. So the actual top of the car was not exposed, which made the lines very nice. For a convertible, it's beautiful."

HOG HEAVEN

The smoothest Harley-Davidson Sportster ever will make your ass even happier than spandex Underoos do.

BY JOSH MAX

2004 HARLEY-DAVIDSON XL 1,200CC CUSTOM SPORTSTER

PRICE $9,425 fully loaded

THE GOODS Rubber-mounted 1,200cc engine; 90.3 inches long; chain drive; five-speed transmission; steel swing arm.

SPEED Up to 120 miles per hour

THE X FACTOR Newbies and veterans alike can now hog the road with confidence.

YOU WON'T MISTAKE the redesigned Harley Sportster for the humongous Road King or the blazing V-Rod, but it's user-friendly enough for first-time riders and cool enough for seasoned bikers. Traditionally, Sportsters made your hands and wrists tremble like the field in electric football. But I experienced no body tremors during a ride from Milwaukee to Chicago and back, thanks to the new rubber-mounted engine, which uses three stabilizers. As a bonus, the stabilizers save your back and butt from the hellacious beating they took on older Sportsters. The bike looks great, too; it boasts swept-back chrome handlebars, a bigger fuel tank and a body festooned with the kind of shiny stuff that gives it that classic lean, mean, ferocious Harley flavor.

Throughout history, hard-core bikers have had to put up with a lot in order to own and ride Harleys—such as listening to the hot chicks who ride behind them complain about the helmet mussing their hair. But Harley has continually made improvements to its bikes (and helmets). The completely redesigned engine on the Sportster has high-flow cylinder heads, high-performance cams and a relatively light dry weight of 554 pounds. All of this lets you blast off in a hurry. The combustion chambers for the 1,200cc engine feature a design that sucks in air and spits it out rapidly, propelling you down the highway that much quicker. Unlike bigger two-wheelers, this Sportster is nimble and svelte enough to negotiate heavy traffic. Now, if we could just get it out of the parking lot here at the bingo hall....

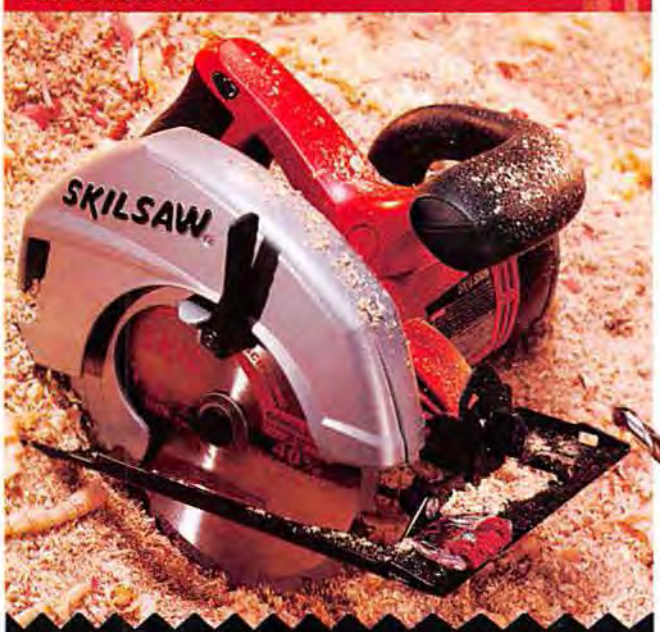
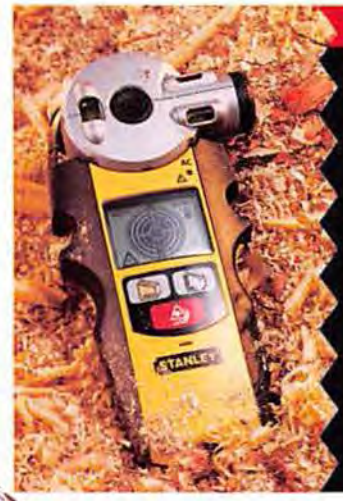
BEST CIRCULAR SAW



SKIL CORDLESS 18V5850 CIRCULAR SAW $99

The GripRight handle keeps the saw from turning on you and converting your fingers into bite-size sausages. The side-mounted battery improves the overall balance of this wood eater, and the Accu-Sight system serves as a sort of scope, allowing you to line up the blade with your intended cutting line. The battery's life depends on your buzz-sawing habits, but Skil guarantees it will cut 70 two-by-fours on a single charge. An antisnag trigger guard keeps accidental starts to a minimum, but that's not to say accidents can't happen. For the right price, we'll accidentally comb your neighbor's hair with this thing. skil.com

BEST MULTITOOL



STANLEY INTELLILASER PRO LASER LINE LEVEL/ STUD FINDER $55

You'll find more studs to nail than a Bryn Mawr girl does when you use this three-in-one tool. Once you find a stud, simply center the bubbles in the plumb and level vials, and a 20-foot laser will keep you on target. This runs on a nine-volt battery, so you can toss your recharge woes out the window. stanleyworks.com

BEST DRILL

BLACK & DECKER GELMAX 18V DRILL/DRIVER $70

The GelMax material in the handle is made from squishy polyurethane. Between that and the molded-rubber grips, the drill almost becomes an extension of your arm. The battery provides roughly three hours of constant drilling, and the removable chuck allows you to flip from screwing to drilling with the deftness of a lawyer. blackanddecker.com

BEST ROTARY TOOL

DREMEL LITHIUM-ION CORDLESS $70

Its lithium-ion battery lasts six times longer than NiCad cells, giving you as much as 45 minutes of continuous drilling. The Dremel matches the speed (up to 35,000 rpm) of its corded cousin, and if its more than 60 included accessories aren't enough, Dremel offers 90 more attachments that allow you to grout, cut and grind to your black heart's content. dremel.com

BEST RECIPROCAL SAW

MILWAUKEE NEW SPORTSMAN'S COMBO KIT $310

Trim joists, studs or sheet metal at a sphincter-clenching 2,700 strokes per minute. Once you finish ripping apart planks and drywall, head for the hills: The saw's orbital-blade action allows you to buzz through tree branches, including those overhanging the firing lines from your tree fort. The squirrels had better take cover! Load the Uzi! milwaukeetool.com

MEET YOUR NEW CELL MATE

You can get one of these cool new phones, switch carriers and keep your old number. Our old number is (CCXII) CCCLXXII-MMMDCCCXCI. Call us! BY STEWART WOLPIN PHOTOGRAPHS BY ALEX CAO

MOST STYLISH PHONE
KYOCERA SLIDER SE47 (VERIZON) $160

This stylin' blue-and-chrome Kyocera comes in Verizon and Virgin versions, and the latter is laden with MTV Moonman and Jackass skull-and-crutches wallpaper. Wait! Where's the keypad? Under the sliding faceplate, if you're old school enough to use it, but you can also make calls using the voice-activated contact list. ("Dial Wonder Woman, please.") The SE47 provides Web access, enhanced text messaging and games. At a compact 3.5" x 1.9" x 0.9" and just 3.4 ounces, we're happy to have something else tiny in our pants to fondle...besides these stale jelly beans.

BEST CAMERA PHONE
SAMSUNG SGH-E715 (T-MOBILE) $250

Most cell cams suck because they don't have a flash. But this Samsung does have a flash, which complements a built-in digital camera that captures 640 x 480 pixel images. And with multimedia messaging, you can e-mail snapshots. Once that novelty wears off, you'll still have a compact (3.5" x 1.8" x 0.9"), lightweight (2.9 ounces), wireless Web-enabled cell phone with a color screen on the inside and a tiny screen on the outside that displays a clock—when it's not showing you who's calling to say it's a good idea for you both to see other people. It's your barber. You're smothering him!

BEST I-MEAN-BUSINESS PHONE
LG VX3100L (VERIZON) $60

The leatherlike finish emits a Brooks Brothers aura that's perfect for when you're forced to wear a suit. Behind the executive decor is a compact (3.15" x 1.72" x 0.9"), light (3.14 ounces) yet functional cell phone with text messaging, a 199-name phone list and a calendar. And when you get bored in the boardroom, you can play games like blackjack. The low price means you get a monochromatic screen, but that's no big deal, except for when it comes to distinguishing between the ace of spades and the three of diamonds. (Diamonds are the green ones, right?)

BEST LOOK-AT-ME PHONE
NOKIA 3100 (AT&T WIRELESS) $75

We was hippomatized by the neon lights produced by the "active" replaceable covers ($30 each) on this Nokia. They blink when you turn on your phone and when you get a call. Once the light show ends, you'll find an international travel-ready tri-band phone, a color display, wireless Web access, multimedia messaging to send sounds and pictures with your text missives, a 300-contact phone book and photo Caller ID—all in a lightweight 4" x 1.7" x 0.6", three-ounce body. Also, download games and ring tones. (We could listen to our car's alarm for hours!)

PORTER MASTERS

With our beer-divining rod as a guide, we discovered the tastiest of porters.* Then the bartender ported us into a cab.

PHOTOGRAPH BY GREGOR HALENDA

Seamus, Randy's Helpful Irish Uncle, says: "When me t'roat is feelin' unloved, lads, 'tis the porter I'm after. It's a cousin to the stout, you see, but it's bolder and more bitter, like me wife. That's because it's made with black malts and loads of hops. Why, I'm havin' another pint just now! And turn on the telly! It's Sligo vs. Clare in hurling!"

SAMUEL SMITH THE FAMOUS TADDY PORTER

The quintessential porter: pitch-black with great head. Its roasted flavor is smooth and easy, and it has faint tastes of molasses and figs. At five percent alcohol by volume, this will leave you upright longer. Pair it with bacon and eggs for a great hangover breakfast; pair it with five more porters for a great morning!

FULLER'S LONDON PORTER

Fuller's boasts hints of charcoal, caramel and molasses that go nicely with raw oysters or can serve as a base in meat stews. With 5.4 percent alcohol and plenty of smoky flavors in the finish, this brew is as refined as an evening spent smoking a pipe—but without the absurdity of actually puffing on a pipe. (We smoke only from hookahs.)

ROGUE MOCHA PORTER

This beer is fairly bitter with a strong aroma. Some charred flavors and a hint of chocolate (produced by the malts) make this a great match for, uh, dark chocolates. And at 5.3 percent alcohol, it makes for a great drinkable dessert—provided you didn't also drink your appetizers and dinner. (It's your own fault for getting your jaw broken.)

SIERRA NEVADA PORTER

This is an exemplary American porter, with a balance of citric bitterness and sweetness, as well as 5.6 percent alcohol. Its dry, roasted finish complements grilled foods and smoked meats. Imagine drinking this beer at 8 A.M. with a bagel, cream cheese, lox, tomato and onions. Yeah, it's tough for us to, too—we never wake up before noon.

REDHOOK BLACKHOOK PORTER

A solid porter that weighs in at 5.23 percent alcohol, it has loads of mocha and burned-sugar flavors. It also has a somewhat bittersweet finish and is reminiscent of sweet iced coffee, black. First-time porter drinkers can quaff this alone or with vanilla ice cream for a porter float. (Ha! Newbies will try anything!)

"A small Olympus—a C-3020 or a C-3030. It was about 900 bucks after I got all the fixin's."

MOST VALUABLE POSSESSION

"I have a limited-edition, signed Carver power amp. [Company founder Bob Carver] doesn't make many of them, and this one he actually signed."

Pluggy the Straight-Shootin' Celebrity Wrangler says: "Howdy, pardners! Jest wanted y'all to know that Henry Rollins has a new DVD, Live at Luna Park, coming out on February 10. As a matter of fact, that talented cuss is on tour right now! Giddy up!"

MOORE POWER

Christina Moore makes That '70s Show that much sexier.

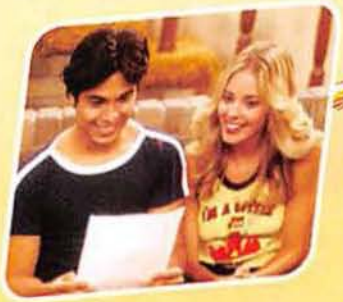
BY MATT SCHNEIDERMAN
PHOTOGRAPHS BY GMAN



We curse our parents for two reasons: for giving away our baby sister and for not having us 10 years earlier. If we had been teenagers in the '70s, we would have known girls like Laurie Forman, the Farrah-licious chick played by Christina Moore on Fox's That '70s Show. (She took over this season for Lisa Robin Kelly.) But as Christina explains, those wild and crazy, anything-goes girls are long gone: "There's an entirely different thing to being the '70s slut, because that was pre-AIDS, pre-crazy-STDs. Sex didn't carry the same stigma in that time period. It was free love. [Today] you have to be way more careful." That's why we conducted this interview over the phone while wearing a condom. Who knows where that phone has been?

STUFF: Much like when David Lee Roth turned into Sammy Hagar, you've taken over another actor's role. Was it difficult to fill the first Laurie's shoes?
CHRISTINA: Laurie is one of those people you love to hate—she's bitchy and mean and slutty. And, of course, now she's married to Fez, so all of my lines are like, "Get away from me, you idiot!" and "I'm not sleeping with you, ever!" The first time I did a live taping, the audience booed. They love Fez, but they booed because I was the new girl and they didn't want me to be there. That '70s Show has its fanatics. They just felt like they weren't consulted. So once they get over that, then they'll have fun.

If you could take over a real person's life, whose body would you step into?
Oh, that's easy—Faith Hill. I would be Faith Hill in a heartbeat. I wouldn't care to have her three kids, but [I'd love to have] her husband and her rock stardom and her fancy clothes and her shoes and all that shit. I spend hours and hours and hours dreaming about Faith Hill's life. I think it's the whole fairy tale—which I'm sure is not without its conflict. The husband and the kids all tour together and are crazy for each other.

SPECIAL FRIENDS

Christina guest-starred on the episode of Friends titled "The One with the Wedding Dresses." Can you guess the character she made out with?

A. Rachel
B. Monica
C. Marcel the monkey
D. Ross

Answer: None of the above. Man, are you dumb! What's the answer? We're not sure. We were watching a Murder, She Wrote rerun that night.

What do you think of your costar Ashton Kutcher filling Demi Moore's generation gap?
I get it. I was thinking about calling Frankie Muniz and asking him out on a date. [Laughs] It would be weird if Demi looked like a 40-year-old woman from the Midwest, but she's a fuckin' hottie. She's got a better body than I do.

Have you ever dated anyone on the grandpa tip?
I tried to date a guy who was older than me. I assumed that he was, like, fortysomething, because he looked great, and then pretty quickly he was like, "I'm about 55." I was like, "OK, you look great." And he said, "And I have three kids and two ex-wives, and I'm looking to have some more kids." Obviously, he wasn't the typical 55-year-old, but that was really like, "You're my dad, and you're looking to breed. Maybe I'm not the girl you're looking for."

So what kind of guy do you prefer: old, dried-up coot or overeager beaver?
For a quick little tryst?

For whatever you want.
I have to go with the overeager beaver—with a fast learning curve.

Getting back to That '70s Show, where do you think Fez is supposed to be from? He sounds foreign.
That has purposely been left open. [The show gets away with] our characters saying every horrible racial thing because they've never identified what his country is. But I'm going to say Argentina.

Have you dated any foreigners?
Not so much. I think all of my boyfriends have had U.S. citizenship. I mean, obviously I have dated guys that were kind of Italian or Irish or originally from other places, but I think all of them had their papers. But yeah, I've dated a couple of flavors here and there.

What's the most sexually liberating thing you've ever done?
For my last birthday, my best friends found me the perfect sex toy. It's called the Jack Rabbit.

And you make regular use of it?
Well, sure. Let's just say that I support the Jack Rabbit. You should get familiar with [sex toys]. I didn't know if I believed in them, and I was like, "Ha-ha! That's funny, you guys. I guess I'll try it." Somebody had to do research on this thing. Yeah.

"Yeah," as in the affirmative of "Yeah, they do work"?
Yeah, I mean, what else can I say?

My name in the heat of passion?

LIQUOR LYLE'S

2021 HENNEPIN AVE., 612-870-8183

Nanook, Randy's Helpful Inuit Cousin, says: "Brrr! Here's a trivia question: In which city is the baseball team the Twins based? Minneapolis! Just like Liquor Lyle's. We Eskimos just love baseball! (It's cool if we call ourselves Eskimos—just as long as you don't.)"

If you can see through the smoky haze, you'll notice that Lyle's is windowless. "When it's 40 below zero, who wants to look at that?" reasons manager Val Solberg. Meteorologists, Val, that's who. But what Lyle's lacks in windows, it more than makes up for in happy hours. Last time we counted, there were three: 10 A.M. to 1 P.M., 3 P.M. to 6 P.M., and 9 P.M. to 11 P.M. Good thing they don't have four. (We can't count and drink, can we?)

DENVER

15TH STREET TAVERN

623 15TH ST., 303-572-0822

Once (or twice) upon a time, the White Stripes and the Queens of the Stone Age played this blue-collar venue, and nowadays it continues to attract bands and their high-profile admirers (hello, Janeane Garofalo!). Hit the joint on a Thursday to take advantage of Courier Day, when pitchers of PBR go for $5. Wear your spandex shorts. And a bicycle helmet.

NEW ORLEANS

SNAKE AND JAKE'S X-MAS CLUB LOUNGE

7612 OAK ST., 504-861-2802

This teeny shack features everything we love about Christmas: a tree, a wreath and $1.50 cans of Schlitz. Owner David describes the vibe as "sleazy Christmas," and we describe David as "cute as a button." (That's right, Dave, we're talking about you!) If you don't have a Santa suit, wear your birthday suit instead: An unwritten rule states that anyone in the buff drinks for free. Just be careful with those drink umbrellas. Scrotal punctures rarely heal 100 percent. Just ask our proctologist!

CHICAGO

OLD TOWN ALE HOUSE

219 W. NORTH AVE., 312-944-7020

It's one of the oldest bars in the Windy City, and it shows: The place is littered with junky toys, tattered books and black-and-white photos, and it has a Jamaican live-in nurse it calls Mommy. The crowd ranges in age from barely legal to terminal—92-year-old regular Hank Ottinger has been drinking here since 1958. Buy him a drink and he'll tell you a story. Our advice? Let him buy. We've heard his stories.

Oooh, there's a martini glass on the sign. Must be a fancy place.

WORCESTER, MASSACHUSETTS

VINCENT'S

49 SUFFOLK ST., 508-752-9439

You can infer one of two things from the name of this place: This bar has links to the Italian American community or Van Gogh drank his ears off here. If you guessed that Vincent's is a place for hearty portions of lasagna, sausage sandwiches and meatballs, you're right. Occasionally, Vinny himself serves house-special martinis (with or without a Schlitz chaser). Vinny also takes pride in his jukebox, which has local acts, hair metal and Sinatra. Give it your regards—and your coins.

HOUSTON

WEST ALABAMA ICE HOUSE

1919 W. ALABAMA ST., 713-528-6874

This Houston institution for liver pollution attracts quite a diverse crowd. Plop down on a stool and you'll likely have a taut young coed sitting to your left, a corporate drone or two to your right and a hairy biker on your lap. (Hey, Buzzard, would it kill you to shave every once in a while?) But if you're there on a Friday, you probably won't notice any of them, because you'll be too busy stuffing your piehole with free hot dogs and washing them down with 40-plus selections from the Ice House's beer menu. That's one for each day of the month! Our favorite is the 29th, which happens only in January, March, April, May, June, July, August, September, October and November. And sometimes December.

SEATTLE

COMET TAVERN

922 E. PIKE ST., 206-323-9853

Smoky, grimy and dark, the no-nonsense Comet accommodates bar-dancing girls, bar-crawling drunks slurping down $1.50 happy-hour beers and, on occasion, Eddie Vedder. (Nirvana rules!) Suits, punks and lost-looking grunge kids flock to see rock shows for $3 at this landmark dive. Fill up on the bar nuts, beef jerky, chips and microbrews, but beware of the bathroom's trough-style urinal: Eddie Vedder might pee on you. (He's a notorious sprayer.)

PORTLAND, OREGON

BAR OF THE GODS

4801 SE HAWTHORNE BLVD., 503-232-2037

As much as we'd like to pretend that we chat up the sexy bartenders and washed-up rock-star regulars (such as Soul Asylum's Dave Pirner) here, we really go for the house-specialty drink. It's made with Stoli Vanilla, sugar, lemon, lime and fruit juices, and it's named after a sexual act. We'd print the name of it here, were it not for the fact that we once had a bad experience performing said act that left us in the hospital. Plus, we're bashful.

This band named itself Respect Your Parents. Because nothing is cooler than doing the opposite of what everyone thinks is cool.

SALT LAKE CITY

BURT'S TIKI LOUNGE

726 S. STATE ST., 801-521-0572

Mormons don't drink alcohol, engage in premarital sex or poop. And yet, in the heart of Conservativeville lies a hedonistic hot spot where the clean-cut and the uncut down cheap beers and heart-quickening shots of cerebral assassin (Jäger, Wild Turkey and Red Bull). Outside, the pint-size Burt's Tiki Lounge advertises itself with a beach-paradise-scene sign; inside, the pope and Elvis hang side by side. (Psst! We hear they're dating!) ▷▷▷

"It's all going to be OK. It's all going to be OK," said the claustrophobic midget.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

RHINO BAR AND PUMP-HOUSE

3295 M ST. NW
WASHINGTON, D.C., 202-333-3150

D.C. can be a tough place to find lovin', but locals say Rhino Bar is like Spanish fly to ladies who legislate...especially near closing. Whether you're a lobbyist or a law student, no bar in the capital gets more skeezy. Although the one-night stands are fast, the bartenders are even faster. Rhino Bar employs some of the quickest competition slingers in D.C. We hope Martin Sheen shows up so we can pour a drink over his head!

NASHVILLE

LONNIE'S WESTERN ROOM

208 PRINTERS ALLEY, 615-251-1122

Nashville is rich in three things: country music, beer and drunken karaoke. Lonnie's provides all three in a gritty, sawdust-ridden, loud celebrity hangout. Willie Nelson and Johnny Cash are just two of the superstars who have graced its stage, and a certain television personality by the name of Jerry Springer has been spotted several times singing onstage. (Yes, you read that right. We included Jerry Springer in a list of celebrities.) Lonnie's is so crazy, we're getting drunk just thinking about it! That, and the fifth of vodka we've also been thinking about. We think all kinds of nutty things.

ALLSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

OUR HOUSE WEST

1277 COMMONWEALTH AVE.,
617-782-3228

Step inside this inconspicuous Allston watering hole and you'll think you've just walked into a raging house party—cash registers and disturbingly early 1:30 A.M. last call notwithstanding. The layout is just like your grandma's place in the suburbs: a bunch of interconnected living rooms with comfy couches, coffee tables aplenty and hundreds of totally anonymous strangers exchanging bodily fluids all night long. Fun alert: It's not unheard of for a Jenga game to break out without provocation. (Though we prefer solo games of naked Trouble, thank you very much.)

SOUTH HAMPTON, PENNSYLVANIA

KENNY'S BAR

1134 STREET RD.,
215-357-9974

Kenny's is awash in history. Check out the cigarette machine that dates all the way back to the '50s (when smoking was part of every pregnant woman's daily health regimen) or the bathrooms that haven't flushed since the early '60s. The patrons here practically define brotherly love, having gone so far as to set up KennysBar.com so the Kenny's community can keep in touch. (Careful, the site's pictures border on wacky.) A word of advice: Don't order the house drink cryptically called the something good. We think it's three parts tequila and one part whatever has soaked into the bar towel. In the case of last night, that would be our blood! (We got a nose bleed.)

SAN DIEGO

COASTER SALOON

744 VENTURA PL., 858-488-4438

With its beachside locale (read: girls in bikinis) and sometimes-flesh-flashing clientele, this wood-paneled surfer hangout was built to provide glimpses of skin. Don't get distracted by the fake shark, the seven TVs or the 20 beers on tap. And don't go gaga over the Jägermeister cooler and dispenser, or you might miss the best sight ever. Awww, you didn't see—we just downed an entire cosmo in less than an hour!

RIVER FALLS, WISCONSIN

JOHNNIE'S BAR

116 N. MAIN ST., 715-425-9291

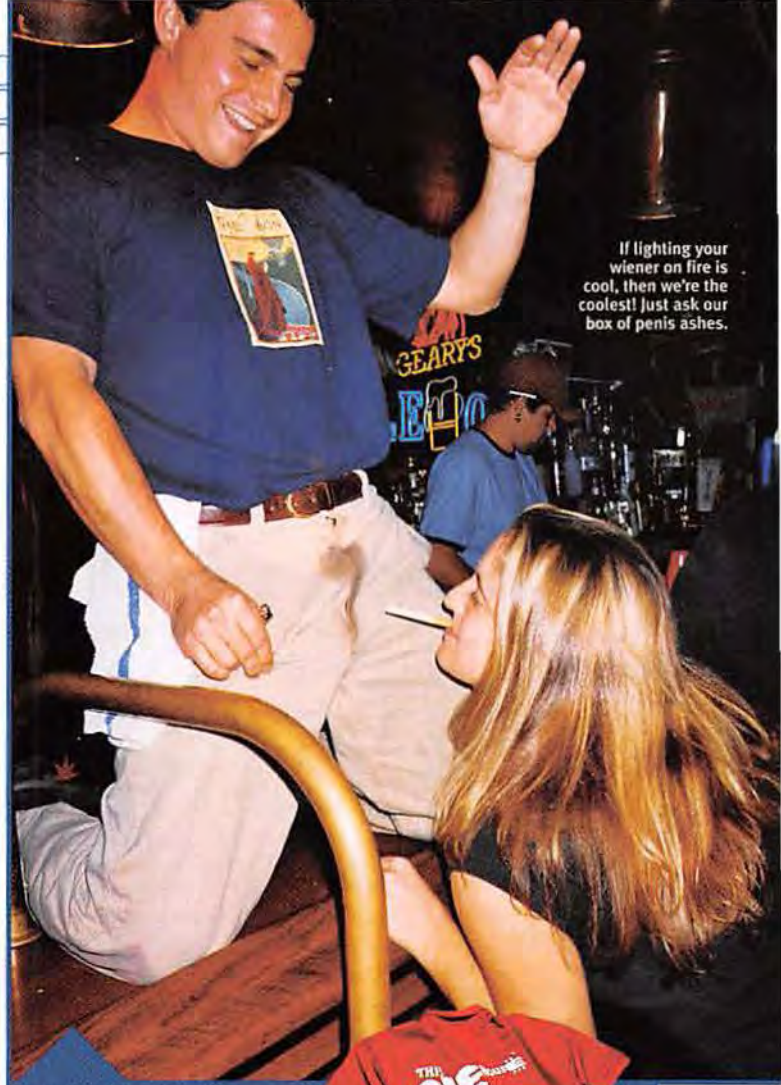
If it's a hip and happening scene you're after, try a different bar. Actually, try a different state. (Holy shit, we just snapped the entire state of Wisconsin!) But if it's $1.75 pints you yearn for, bring your toxic ass to Johnnie's. The vibe here is super-duper-friendly, so make sure to buy a round for your new BFFs. One might even be a Kansas City Chief—the team trains in River Falls during the summer. Drunkenly attempt to clothesline him. Those guys love that junk.

BUFFALO, NEW YORK

BROADWAY JOE'S

3051 MAIN ST., 716-836-9555

To the casual observer, Broadway Joe's is an unimpressive wooden saloon crammed into a nondescript strip mall. But to a more formal observer (we like to wear a tux and platform shoes when we do our observing), it is a booze and music lover's dream. Hippie jammers Rusted Root, rap pioneer Kool DJ Herc and members of Phish fill the bar with music—and the urinal with their pee-pee. With the longest-running hip-hop night in Buffalo, free Buffalo wings (imported from, um, Buffalo!) from 6 P.M. to 9 P.M. and 25-cent drafts of Koch's Golden Anniversary, Joe's rocks harder than Hoobastank. Who, in fact, do not rock much at all. (They're more of a groove band—at least according to their press release.)



If lighting your wiener on fire is cool, then we're the coolest! Just ask our box of penis ashes.

PORTLAND, MAINE

THE ALE HOUSE

30 MARKET ST., 207-253-5100

Walk into this cellarlike bar and enter a world of weird with the kind of personality T.G.I. Friday's spends millions to fake. Mind the stuffed llama in the corner as you make your way to one of the indoor swings and down a dollar draft of PBR. "In my bar, you'll find captains of industry talking with meter maids," says owner Russ. Meter maids in Maine? What do they ticket? Schooners?

ATLANTA

CLERMONT LOUNGE

789 PONCE DE LEON AVE. NE, 404-874-4783

"It's like Cheers with strippers," says owner Kathi. Sounds great, but our heart eternally belongs to George Wendt's jiggling man-boobs. This seedy hotel and basement bar has no games, no food and no draft beer, but after a few shots of fuckin' in the graveyard (schnapps, blue curacao and cranberry juice) and a $10 lap dance, you'll forget about the joint's shortcomings—not to mention your wife and hungry kids at home. Top the evening off with a visit from Blondie, the big, blond stripper who crushes empty beer cans with her boobies. Yawn! Teach your boobies to write poetry—then we'll talk.

LAS CRUCES, NEW MEXICO

BREW HA HA PUB

2500 S. VALLEY DR., 505-647-3348

Perry the Pessimistic Pea Pod says: "Hey. The mascot for NMSU is the Aggie. I'm not exactly sure what an Aggie is, but I do know this: Pea pods have very short life spans. Puts your problems in perspective, doesn't it?"

Just 45 minutes from that country just south of ours (Canada, we think), laid-back Brew Ha Ha makes international road trips unnecessary with its dollar beers and loads of bar games, including pool, foosball and darts. Hang with broke-ass New Mexico State kids, hit on the attractive bartenders or lecture the waitresses on the unhygienic nature of body shots. Do they have any idea where our lips have been? Actually, does anyone have any idea? We miss them!

BIG GAME HUNTER

Deion Sanders was a prime-time player in two Super Bowls. These days, he's intercepting the spotlight on CBS's NFL Today. Sit back and enjoy as the voice of the Super Bowl opens his superhole. BY BILL SCHULZ PHOTOGRAPHS BY MARK MANN

Not only was Deion Sanders one of the last and best athletes of his generation, but while high-stepping it with Dallas in 1996, he became the first NFL starter to go both ways since 1962. Read into that what you will, but by the time Mr. Offense and Defense ditched the Redskins in 2001, he had amassed all-star stats in two different sports. To wit: 49 interceptions, 186 stolen bases in 641 games and a record 18 touchdowns scored on returns. He was the 1992 MLB triples leader with 14, and if that weren't enough, he's the only man ever to play in both a World Series and a Super Bowl (earning himself two championship rings in the latter). But the most lasting image of Deion's career occurred in 1992, when he played with the Braves on a Saturday night in Pittsburgh, flew on a jet to Miami and played a Sunday game with the Falcons, then flew back Sunday night to play with the Braves (though he rode the bench that game).

The only Super Bowl XXXVIII guarantee we can make is that the usual postgame shenanigans on The NFL Today will be anything but boring as long as Deion is around to spew his smack. As a New York Daily News scribe recently put it, Sanders has effectively turned Jim Nantz, Boomer Esiason and Dan Marino into nothing more than human props. Each weekend, millions tune in to see what the 36-year-old zoot-suited riot is going to say next. The ex-cornerback's most recent announcement was his intent to take Dan Reeves' spot as coach of the Falcons. Deion thinks he can do a better job, and we aren't going to argue. (Mostly because we're still waiting for him to sign his model release.)

"Jim, is it just me, or does Paris Hilton look a little drunk in this video?"

STUFF: Your mom spanked you until you were 16, but you turned out pretty well. Are people wrong in eschewing this method?
DEION: My kids don't respond to time-outs. American kids don't respond to time-outs. I'll go as far as to say that.

At Florida State University, you were already sporting lots of jewelry, and you owned a nice Chrysler. How could your mom afford to pay for all that?
She worked two jobs, and my uncle sold drugs. That's where the money came from. He did time—turned his life around. I don't want to go into what side [of the family] he's on.

Fair enough. Years ago, MC Hammer did you a favor by putting your father on his payroll. Has Hammer since come to you looking for a handout after his recent financial setbacks?
I don't want to go there, man. Hammer's life? His life is personal.

So, everyone's talking about the designer steroid THG. How rampant is this drug in the NFL?
I don't care. I don't know too much about THG. I'm a guy who never drank, smoked or anything. Those guys are trying to get the edge, which I don't think is right. Let's talk about something else besides steroids.

> "I don't think it's insulting to coaches for me to voice my desires."

You're a fan of ESPN's Playmakers. A recent plotline delved into gays in pro football. Do you think a homosexual NFL player will ever come out before his career is over?
I don't think right now. We would be foolish to think that out of 50 guys on a team, one guy may not have [a different] preference. We would be naive to assume that. I know it's accepted in different walks of life, but I think NFL players have yet to embrace the idea. It's just so foreign. It's something that's not seen.

Did any of your teammates ever make you suspicious?
There's always people you have suspicions about. But you don't judge it. I mean, you hear things, but you don't take them any further.

Have you ever gotten any solid proof?
That would be hard to get, unless you're involved. [Laughs]

OK, let's say you get the Falcons coaching gig. What's the first change you'd make?
Personnel, and I would change coaches. You want to be comfortable with your own staff.

What do you make of Cris Collinsworth saying that your proposal was an insult to coaches and that you couldn't put together a defensive and offensive game plan?
[Rolls eyes] I don't think it's insulting to coaches for me to voice my desires. Secondly, a man can't comment on how intelligent ▷▷▷

VOOD2003

THIS HALLOWEEN, FILA invaded New Orleans for the Voodoo Music Experience, a three-day outdoor music festival featuring such hot artists as Mos Def, the Roots, the White Stripes, George Clinton, Cypress Hill, Ludacris and Queens of the Stone Age. Between performances, the artists could be found on the FILA bus, kicking back and stocking up on FILA gear to wear onstage. Concertgoers hung out in the Joker tent, where they rolled dice to win Joker rolling papers and other branded merchandise.

"Come on, caption, get out of my way! I've got to make a touch...I mean home run."

another man is—especially not knowing the man. This is like me saying Collinsworth should never have been a receiver—he's slow and skinny. I've never played against the guy, so I wouldn't know. Someone asked me the question whether I would consider coaching the Falcons, and I responded yes. It wasn't that I went out and made a statement.

If you'd had more faith in the direction that the Redskins were moving, do you think you'd still be playing football right now?
If they hadn't hired the coach that they hired [Marty Schottenheimer], I may be. I would have honored my contract with the Redskins. It wasn't angry or resentful or hateful.

After Deion Jr. and Deiondra, you abandoned the variations-on-your-name theme with your next child, Shilo. How about naming your newest baby Noied? That's Deion backward! [Correcting me] Noiéd. We have to go with Sh. Shilo, Shidora—has to be Sh.

Makes sense. Did your friend Michael Irvin ever come to you for advice during his battle with drink and drugs?
You don't know that. You don't know if he battled with drink and drugs. Mike may have indulged in some of those activities. I don't want to call it a battle.

Deion Sanders

"Money attracts honey."

On this, the 40th anniversary of one of our nation's greatest tragedies, I must ask: Deion, who killed JFK?
I don't know. I mean—I don't know who killed JFK. Who did it? The guy they arrested?

Correct! Ever think about bringing back your Jheri-curl 'do?
No. I don't have enough hair. I can't grow hair.

Much like you did, Kobe Bryant got married at a young age. Is that just a bad idea for any athlete?
No. You can't say that. Kobe is much more mature than the person who's out there thinking it's a mistake. I feel for him, as well as the female he had the encounter with, and I wish it could have been reconciled out of the courts. I hope the truth comes out in the end.

What advice would you give NFL rookies on the dangers of groupies?
Just be careful. People might not love you but just love what you do. Money attracts honey.

Nice rhyme! Did you really tell an auto-repair guy that Jesus told you to pay $3,000 less than the bill?
I won the case, so I guess if he did tell me, he told me right. I won the case. They didn't want to magnify that part of it.

You survived a car-off-the-cliff suicide attempt in '97 under pretty miraculous circumstances. Was there a seatbelt involved?
No. It was the grace of God that kept me [alive]. There was no seatbelt involved. That's why I'm thankful for everything. [Now] I don't thirst for anything. I don't thirst for those things I thirsted for before.

I've got some naked photos of Jeff Goldblum that my boss won't let me run. Are you as pissed as I am about it?
First of all, I don't know who Jeff Goldblum is.

I'll take that as a yes.

OFF THE GRID

So, how exactly do the NFL Today scamps pass the time between their pre- and postgame analysis? By entering an end zone called fun.

Gasp! Eslason and Nantz have conjured up the spirit of Jimmy the Greek on their Ouija board. Get him to say something racist!

Who wants s'mores? We think a certain Mr. Marino will have two!

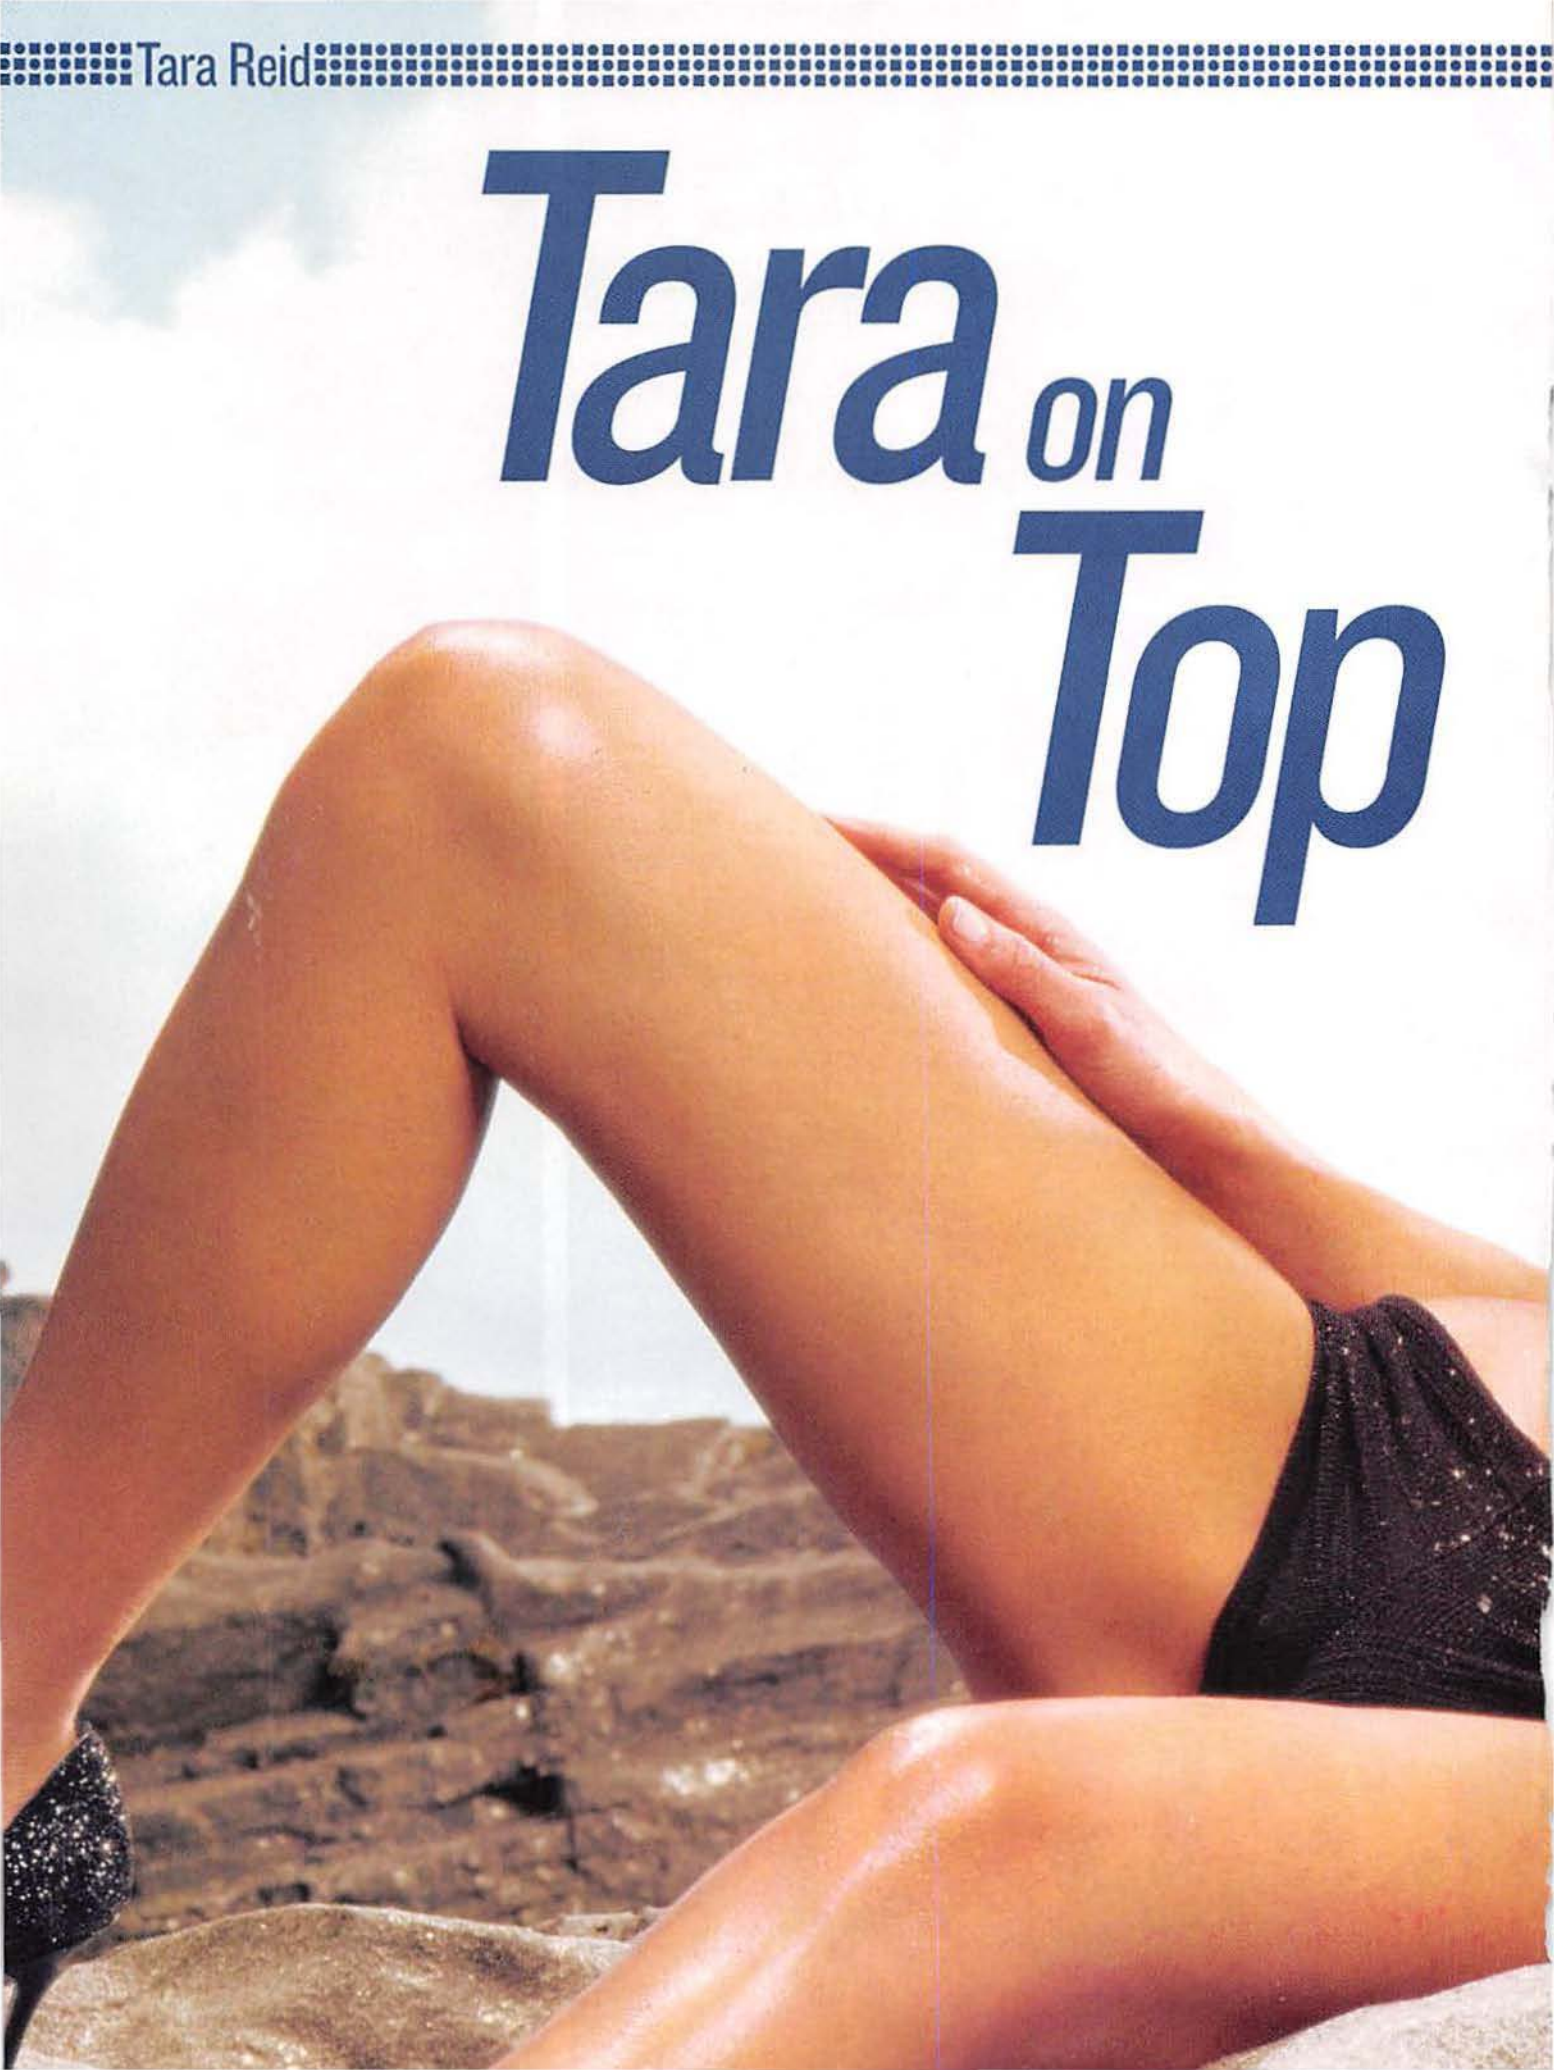
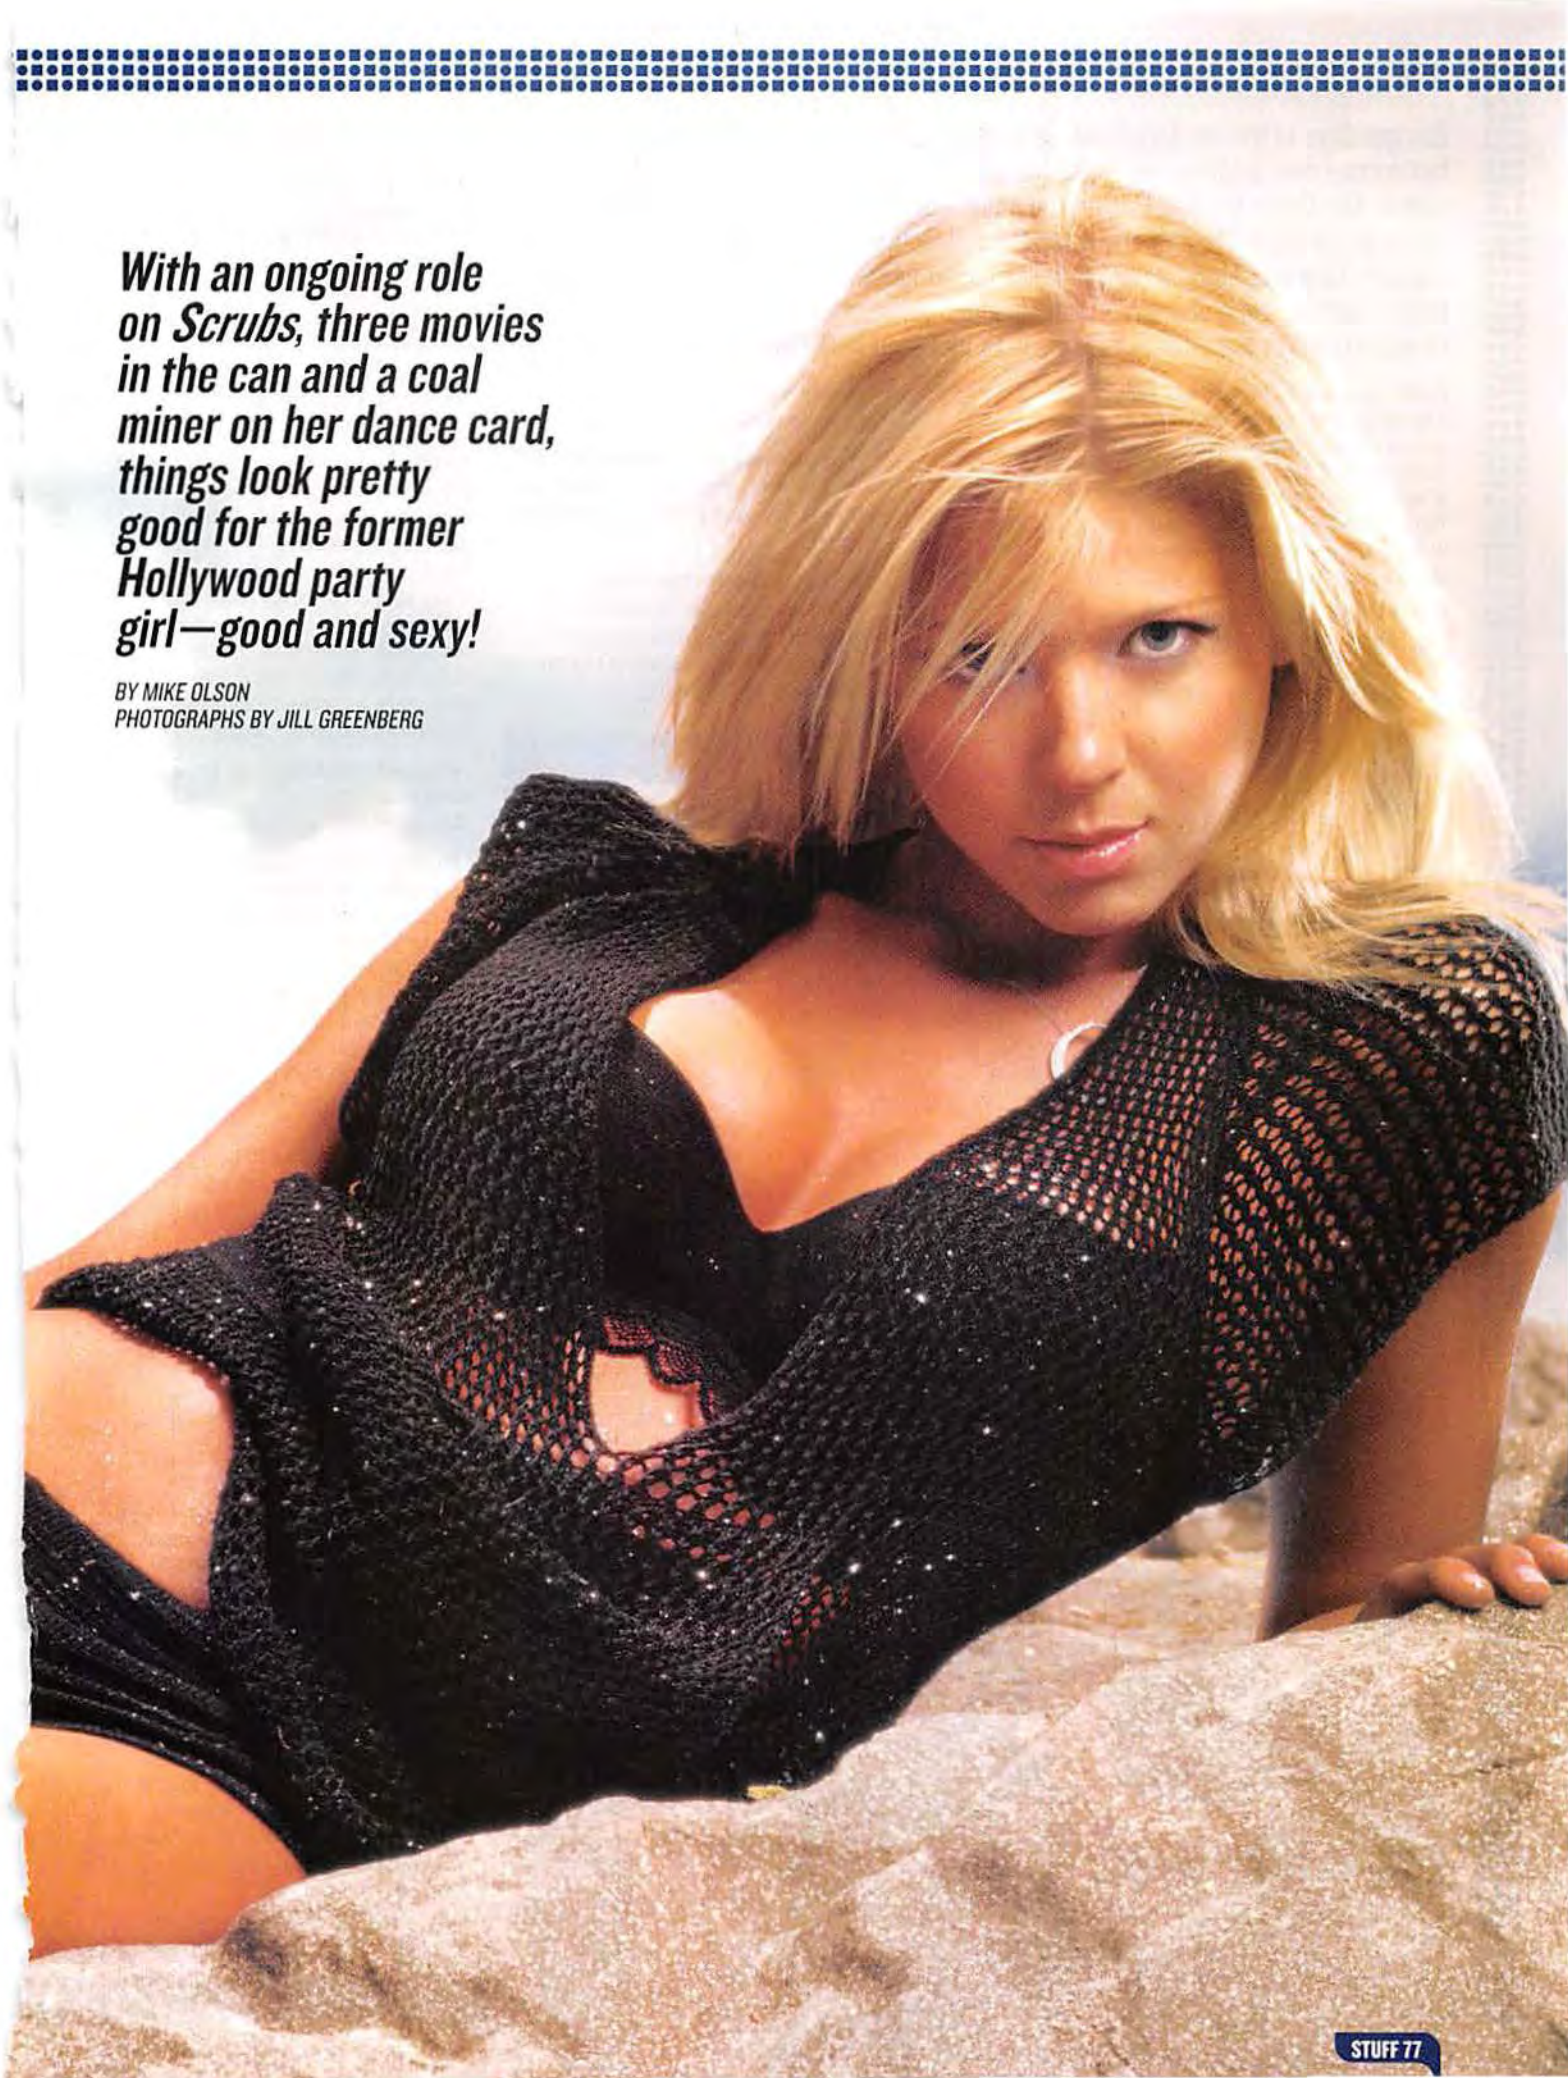
Tara on Top





With an ongoing role on Scrubs, three movies in the can and a coal miner on her dance card, things look pretty good for the former Hollywood party girl—good and sexy!

BY MIKE OLSON
PHOTOGRAPHS BY JILL GREENBERG

Tara Reid

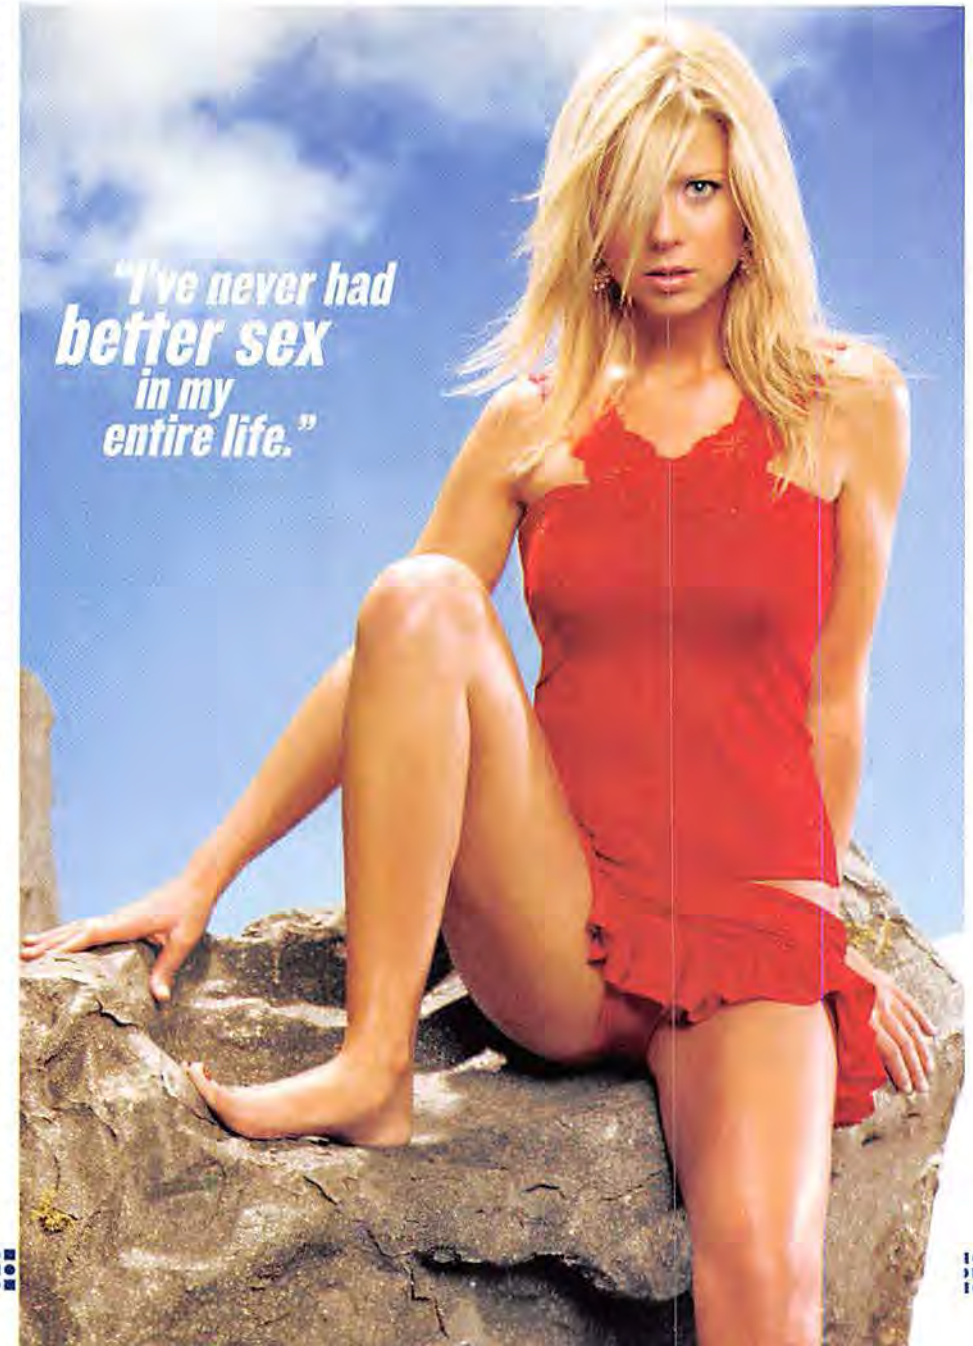
Say goodbye to the old Tara Reid. The smoking-hot blonde with the smokier voice has turned over a tamer leaf—and her career has turned a corner. In 2004, she'll star in The Crow: Wicked Prayer, the indie film Knots (with John Stamos!) and Alone in the Dark. Though she was selected Hollywood's Most Wanted by industry experts, Tara was kind enough to talk to us at her sizzling photo shoot. Sure, we had to wait for the cameras to stop clicking, but we ate enough free pistachios to make it worth our while. (When you think about it, it's like getting a raise!)

STUFF: You went to high school with a bunch of other actors, including Jerry O'Connell. Did you see Kangaroo Jack out of a feeling of obligation?
TARA: I did see Kangaroo Jack. [Laughs] When you know someone forever, you see them and you just laugh. It's cute.

Paris Hilton is another friend of yours. What do you think of The Simple Life?
I think it's hilarious. I think they're adorable on it. It's totally two different worlds that intertwine, and it's funny to see how they interact.

Have you seen her infamous sex tape?
No, I haven't. I don't want to watch my friends have sex. That doesn't really do it for me.

Have you talked to her about it?
No offense, but even if I did, I'm not going to tell you. That's personal. If she's not talking, why would I be the one who said something?



Because it might help me get a promotion! You auditioned for the role of Mary Jane in Spider-Man but didn't get it. Did you root for it to fail miserably? I know I would have.
If you got hung up on every movie you didn't get, you'd quit. That's just bitter. If I don't get it, it wasn't meant to be. Whatever cards are dealt to me, I'll deal with them. But if I don't get something, I'm not angry at the people. There's always another movie.

A while ago, Allure magazine revamped your wardrobe and covered up your midriff for a photo shoot. What the hell was their problem?
It was just a different look. I thought it was kind of cool. I felt really elegant and classy. Clothes make you feel a certain way. Sometimes I like to dress funky, sometimes classy. It's like, sometimes you crave Italian food, sometimes you crave Chinese.

I hope you're still willing to show some skin.
Well, I'm not going to look like a slut.

Certainly not! Are you as much of a party animal as the tabloids make you out to be? Is that much drinking even humanly possible?
I definitely went through my days of partying, and I still like to have a good time, but I've slowed down. Every time you go out, it's written about. If you go out 12 times, you get 12 bad articles written about you. If you think about the mathematics on that, it's insane. Finally, I was like, Fuck this. I've worked too hard to be known just as a party girl. I work my ass off all week. If I want to play on the weekends, why shouldn't I? But then I learned that I'm a public figure, so I had to start being more careful. And I did. Honestly, since I've calmed down, my life's never been better. I have the greatest boyfriend in the world. You don't need to get blacked-out drunk with your boyfriend.

Tell me about the lucky guy.
He lives in Ohio. He's in the coal-mining business—totally out of [Hollywood]. He's funny and smart and he totally understands me, which is great.

He's not intimidated having a starlet in bed with him?
He doesn't treat me like that. He gets it, you know? It's hard to date someone and know that they like you for you and not for [how famous] you are. That's a problem for me, 'cause I try to go for regular guys, but it's hard, because they want you to say hi to their friend on the phone, and that's so weird. [My boyfriend] is never like that. I know he likes me for me. He could give a shit how much money I make or what I do.

Must Reids!

Tara's can't-miss performances are almost as impressive as ours. (We mime.)

In Iraq, they call it Infidel Pie. It's just their way.

Van Wilder never saw what hit him. (It was the stick.)

Tara and that dude from Scrubs. On the Scrubs set!

Tell me something that most people don't know about you. I swear I won't tell a soul.

I hate feet. They freak me out. I don't like my own feet, either. There's something about feet that's creepy. I just think they're dirty. I hate any part of the body that can stink that bad. They have that odor...ugh!

But you know what they say about feet.

If the second toe's longer, they have a big pee-pee. No—they're good in bed or something. That's what they say. I don't know if it's true. I guess, check out the guy's second toe. That says it all.

That theory seems unlikely.

Probably because [you don't] have a big second toe. You're like, "But I'm good in bed. I swear to God." ▷▷▷

I would never make a claim like that! Is there any way to know if a guy's going to be good in bed before jumping his bones?
I think that if a guy can dance well. When a guy can actually move his hips, I'm telling you, you're guaranteed to have good sex. My boyfriend can dance. This is the only guy I've ever dated who can dance that well, and I've never had better sex in my entire life.

Besides hip swiveling and not giving a shit, what else do you look for?
I like normal guys, and I like a guy who's funny, caring and sweet—but goofy. Just someone I can get and who gets me and knows I'm not perfect. There's nothing sexier than a guy with confidence. Every guy out there who doesn't have a girlfriend, if you listen to this, you're guaranteed to get a great girlfriend.

Have you bothered staying in touch with any of your exes?
I run into Carson [Daly] a lot. We're totally cool. I'm cool with everyone I've dated, but it takes time. Eventually, years down the road, when you're both in love with someone else, you're happy to see each other. But I'll never really like any of my boyfriends' exes, and I'm sure their exes won't like me. That's a natural girl thing, no matter what.

What advice do you have for someone who is obsessed with an ex-girlfriend? Oh, and just to clarify, this person is definitely not me.
When a girl's done, go away. The more you try, [the more] she thinks you're nuts. When you're over someone, it's done. The chapter's done. You're on to the next one.

And, sadly, our chapter together has ended. Thanks for not being a bitch. To be honest, I was kinda worried about that.
I don't know why. I'm not a mean-spirited person. That's the one thing people definitely have wrong about me.

Isn't it sad, almost tragic, that this was our one moment together and we may never see each other again?
Our paths will cross again. I have a feeling.

That's the nicest lie I've ever heard!

"I WAS A TEENAGE MURDER VICTIM"

BY SEAMUS McGRAW OPENING PHOTOGRAPH BY TIMOTHY HOGAN

Natasha Ryan was savagely murdered, and her body was never found. Her parents held a funeral, and a known psychopath stood trial as her killer. And then a funny thing happened....

The rage inside Leonard John Fraser erupted. Brutality and loathing guided his gnarled fist as it crashed into 14-year-old Natasha Ryan's skull. Who did she think she was, threatening to tell the cops that he was the father of her unborn child? He punched her again and again. Fear was in her eyes, and her entire body emanated terror as he walked behind her, pushing her through the rutted fields of an old farm near Rockhampton, a small town in Queensland, Australia. At the edge of an old lily pond, he pulled out a knife and slowly dragged it across her throat.

As Fraser finished telling this horrific story to a jailhouse friend, his fellow con sat stunned. Now it was out in the open—even more than Fraser realized. His cell was wired, and authorities were listening to every word.

Details of the confession soon got out and fueled public demand for justice. The clamor grew louder when authorities failed to find Ryan's body—despite turning over every inch of sod on the remote farm. The outrage intensified as the girl's estranged parents held a funeral for their murdered daughter without her body. The fury reached its height on March 31, 2003, when Fraser was led to court to face charges of murdering four women, including Natasha Ryan.

The trial was in its ninth day when Paul Rutledge, the crown prosecutor for Queensland, rose before the court and uttered astonishing words: "Natasha Ryan is alive."

BACK FROM THE DEAD

The police officer could hardly believe his eyes when he opened the wardrobe in the bedroom. There was Natasha Ryan, peering at him like an opossum in a hollow tree. Her chalky face glowed like phosphorus.

Australians became transfixed on the 14-year-old girl who incredibly spent nearly five years in a self-imposed prison in her boyfriend's house. She was the topic of discussion at lunch counters and was fodder for tabloids and television shows; the Australian version of 60 Minutes reportedly offered her more than $100,000 for the rights to her tale. A radio station in Brisbane set up an array of cupboards outside a local casino and offered $2,000 to the person who could remain inside one the longest.

But Ryan's story wasn't surprising to those who knew her. Her hypnotic character first became evident five years prior, when she reportedly lured Scott Black, a mild-mannered milkman then in his early twenties, from his girlfriend—Ryan's slightly older sister.

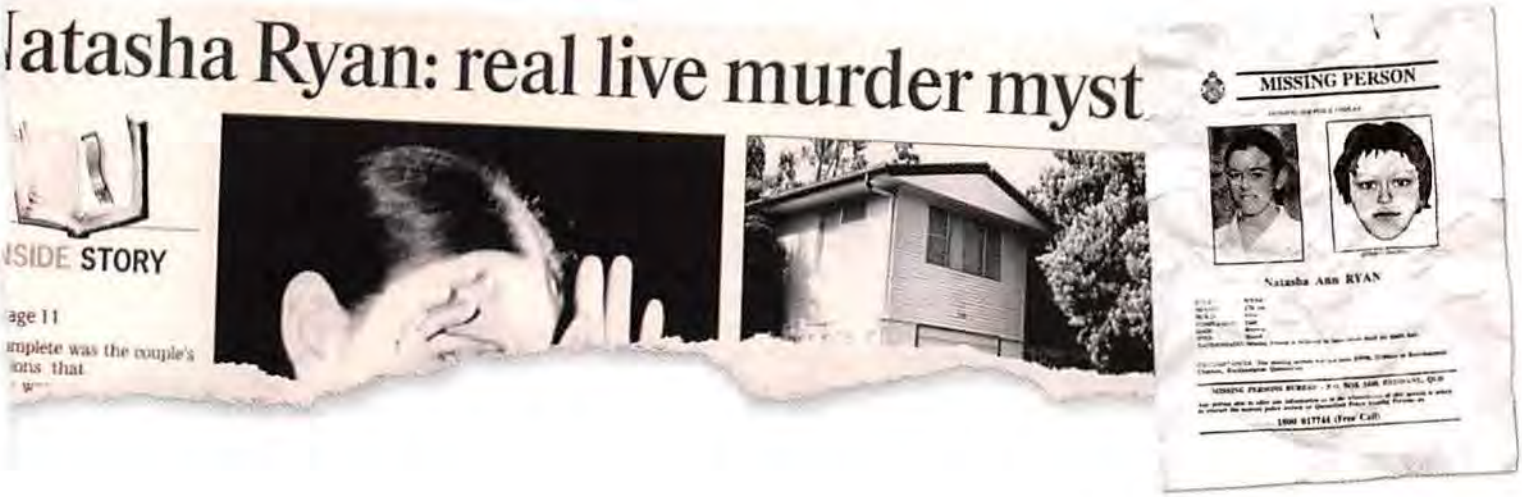
According to Ross LoMonaco, a lawyer who has represented both Ryan and Black, Natasha's 14th year was a difficult one for her: Her parents divorced and, to make matters worse, a local man (not Black) made lewd advances toward the winsome girl. The scandal landed the man in court and put Ryan in an awkward position in Rockhampton. Feeling trapped, she enlisted Black in a plot to escape the weirdness. Whether love or hormonal blackmail was the reason, Black defied common sense and the laws governing appropriate behavior with an underage girl. He put Ryan up in a seedy motel until they could figure out their next step, LoMonaco says.

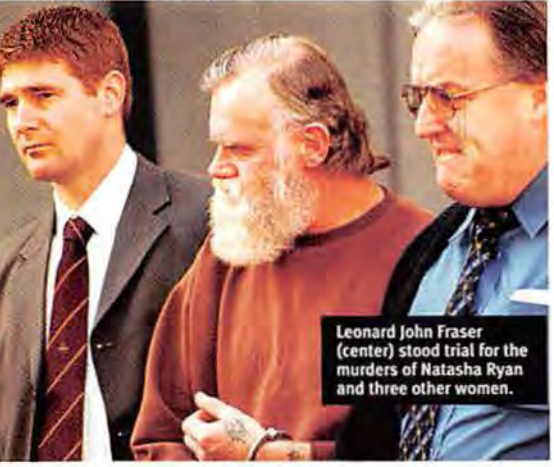
After just three days, Ryan was found. The police quickly returned her to her frantic mother. Black was immediately questioned regarding the disappearance. He played dumb, but when the cops found Ryan in the flophouse room rented in his name, it looked—as they say in Australia—a bit dodgy.

Black was arrested and charged with "child stealing," an offense that would have gotten him arrested had it been committed in the United States. But this was laid-back Australia, and LoMonaco successfully argued that "nothing untoward was going on," so prosecutors agreed to reduce the charges to interfering with a police investigation. Black was fined $1,000 and sent on his way.

Ryan, however, remained determined to escape her life. The gossip was that her judgment had been skewed by drug use, that she was pregnant, and that she was a troublemaker at school. In reality, a supersize order of teenage angst simply got the better of her. "I just felt angry at everybody and everything," Ryan later said. "I didn't want to be at school, I didn't want to be at home, I didn't want to be there in that life." In August 1998, Ryan staged her own abduction by vanishing after her mother dropped her off at school. This time, Ryan persuaded Black to let her hide inside his home, which was just a couple of miles away from her parents' house.

When Ryan's family reported her missing, the police raided Black's house. According to LoMonaco, Ryan scampered into an attic crawl space the instant she heard the cops at the door. The police never bothered to look there. ▷▷▷





Leonard John Fraser (center) stood trial for the murders of Natasha Ryan and three other women.

Black was kept under surveillance for a short time, but police eventually lost interest in him. The milkman and his teenage paramour began living their version of domestic bliss, even moving into a bigger place in late 2002. "She kept a beautiful house," said an anonymous source who spoke to Stuff.

According to those who have spoken to her since her resurrection, Ryan and Black lived in near total isolation. To keep up appearances, Black maintained his work schedule and left the house every morning at 4 A.M. While he was away, Ryan kept the shades drawn and watched soap operas and crime dramas with the volume turned down. She cooked, sewed and taught herself how to read and speak German.

Whenever people dropped by the house, Ryan would scurry into hiding. She would occasionally cower in a cupboard for up to six hours at a time, LoMonaco said. In four and a half years, Ryan rarely ventured outside, though she once persuaded a nervous Black to drive her to a nearby beach so she could stick her toes in the moonlit surf. As weeks turned into months and years, the gravity of the deception grew. "Everything just snowballed," Ryan later said. "Everything just got out of hand."

Ryan's ruse was so well executed that two years after she went missing, her parents, Robert and Jenny Ryan, gave up hope that she would ever reappear. "The police...became involved in...a murder investigation of this runaway," LoMonaco said. And for the sake of closure, the Ryans held a funeral service for their lost daughter.

Natasha Ryan celebrated four birthdays while her family and cops believed she was dead.

A KILLER—BUT NO VICTIM

It was logical that authorities took Fraser at his word when he confessed that Natasha Ryan was among his victims. A hard-core con with a menacing sneer, the 51-year-old sociopath was out of prison for only about 18 months after serving 12 years for rape when, in April 1999, horrified Rockhampton residents watched as he smashed in the head of a nine-year-old girl and then hid her dead body in the tall grass of a vacant lot. He later put the body in the trunk of a car. "People across the street saw that attack and called the police, by which time Fraser had gone," prosecutor Paul Rutledge said. "But, as luck would have it, a prison officer who was driving to work late that afternoon saw Fraser in the area, and as soon as police heard that, they tracked him down."

When cops busted into Fraser's apartment and searched his blood-spattered car, they found evidence linking him to at least three other murders, all vicious and involving women. In one instance, according to Rutledge, Fraser strangled a woman with her own panties.

Police also found several locks of women's hair—none of it matching the known victims—all carefully braided into pigtails and held together with rubber bands. "You can draw your own explanations," Rutledge says. The conclusion Queensland authorities came to was that Fraser was responsible for killing numerous women, perhaps even Natasha Ryan. Convinced that they would eventually find Ryan's body and confident that they would win a conviction even without it, Rutledge and his team charged Fraser with her murder.

For all of her careful planning, Ryan never considered what she might do if someone other than Black were arrested in connection with her murder. Even though Black had been cleared as a suspect, authorities still believed that he had been the last to see Ryan alive, and he was pressured to sign a sworn statement to that effect. The prosecution felt that the statement would convince jurors that Black had been officially eliminated as a suspect and would thus make it easier to make the case against Fraser.

LoMonaco was troubled by what his client, Black, was being asked to do. The lawyer had a nagging feeling that Ryan was alive. "I always had my doubts about whether this girl was actually dead," LoMonaco says. "I said to Scott, 'Listen, if this statement isn't correct—I'm not saying you know where she is now, but if you know that she is somewhere or that she's alive—do not sign this.'"

"No worries," Black responded before signing the document.

Ryan and Black knew, as Ryan put it, "the lie was too big," and that as a result there was a strong possibility that they'd be prosecuted if they came forward. Even worse, Black was scheduled to testify against Fraser. If Black swore to the statement he'd signed to protect the secret, it would be perjury.

Her identity had been confirmed earlier when ...

though her body was never found.

When his trial started on Monday last week, he pleaded not guilty to murdering Ms Sylvia Maria Bene...

"I mean, shit," says LoMonaco, "she's supposed to be a murder victim, and she's been here the whole time. If she comes out now, Scott's going to jail for child stealing. I don't know whether Scott Black is saying, 'If you go out, I'm going to jail,' but I imagine they're protecting each other.

"Whatever it is that caused her to run away and not want to be found, Black's protecting her from that. From her point of view, she's trying to protect him, because she knows he's going to jail if she comes out."

The pressure got to Ryan first. In early 2003, she called a local teen help line, says LoMonaco, and pretended to be "Sally," a young girl who had run away. "Sally" mentioned that a man who was less than guilty was about to be convicted of her murder. The flummoxed volunteer at the other end of the line had no idea what to make of the call but passed it along to police three weeks later.

The bizarre tale got the cops' attention, of course, but "Sally" had not been so distraught as to let slip any significant details regarding her true identity or whereabouts. Police had no information they could act on, because help lines are anonymous.

A CALL FROM BEYOND THE GRAVE

The call to the help line did nothing to abate the whirl of confusion in Ryan's mind. Inexplicably, she also telephoned Ben Elkins, a former boyfriend.

It is another example of the hypnotic influence Ryan had on the men in her life that Elkins—who, for all intents and purposes, had just received a phone call from the beyond—agreed to keep Ryan's whereabouts a secret from her parents and the authorities. Still, the young man was troubled by the fact that his supposedly dead ex-girlfriend was not only alive, but she was also living with another guy.

In the end, Elkins confided his concerns to a colorful older man by the name of Len Bauer. A masseur who helped make ends meet by selling Christian books, Bauer was a well-known eccentric in Rockhampton. As LoMonaco puts it, Bauer "looks like the bloody messiah."

Scott Black seemed a simple milkman, but his closet hid a sensational secret.

After much soul-searching, Bauer told Stuff, he finally decided to absolve the teenager of any responsibility and do the godly thing. Bauer wrote an anonymous letter to the police that was peppered with Biblical references about the virtue of forgiveness, and it led the authorities to the house Black had rented just six months earlier.

In their first sweep of the new house in early April, the cops found a cowering Ryan. A police spokesman said, "[Natasha] made it very clear that she did not want to be found, and she did not want to come with us when we found her."

When Rutledge rose in court to announce that Ryan was alive, Fraser took off his glasses and started to sob. Fraser shed more tears a few days later, when Ryan made an emotional appearance at his trial, testifying to the obvious—that she wasn't dead and that she had never met Leonard John Fraser, let alone been killed by him. The display did nothing to improve Fraser's image in the eyes of the judge: He was sentenced to 30 years to life for the murders he had committed.

In the weeks that followed, Black and Ryan found themselves parodied on television, mocked on street corners and denying rumors—including a persistent one, first raised by a couple of Ryan's former classmates and a school counselor, that Ryan went into hiding because she was pregnant.

Once everything had settled down, Ryan said she "honestly didn't know" how she could have put her family through it all, and she changed her tune about being found. "I feel free," she said. "I was really scared of the consequences. I thought I would be sent to prison or to a bad place. I was just gutless."

Ryan and Black are currently waiting to find out whether they'll be charged with interfering with a police investigation. Privately, some in the law-enforcement world wish the whole sordid affair would just go back into hiding.

In the meantime, Natasha Ryan, now 19 and legally entitled to establish residence in the cubbyhole of her choosing, is once again living with Scott Black.

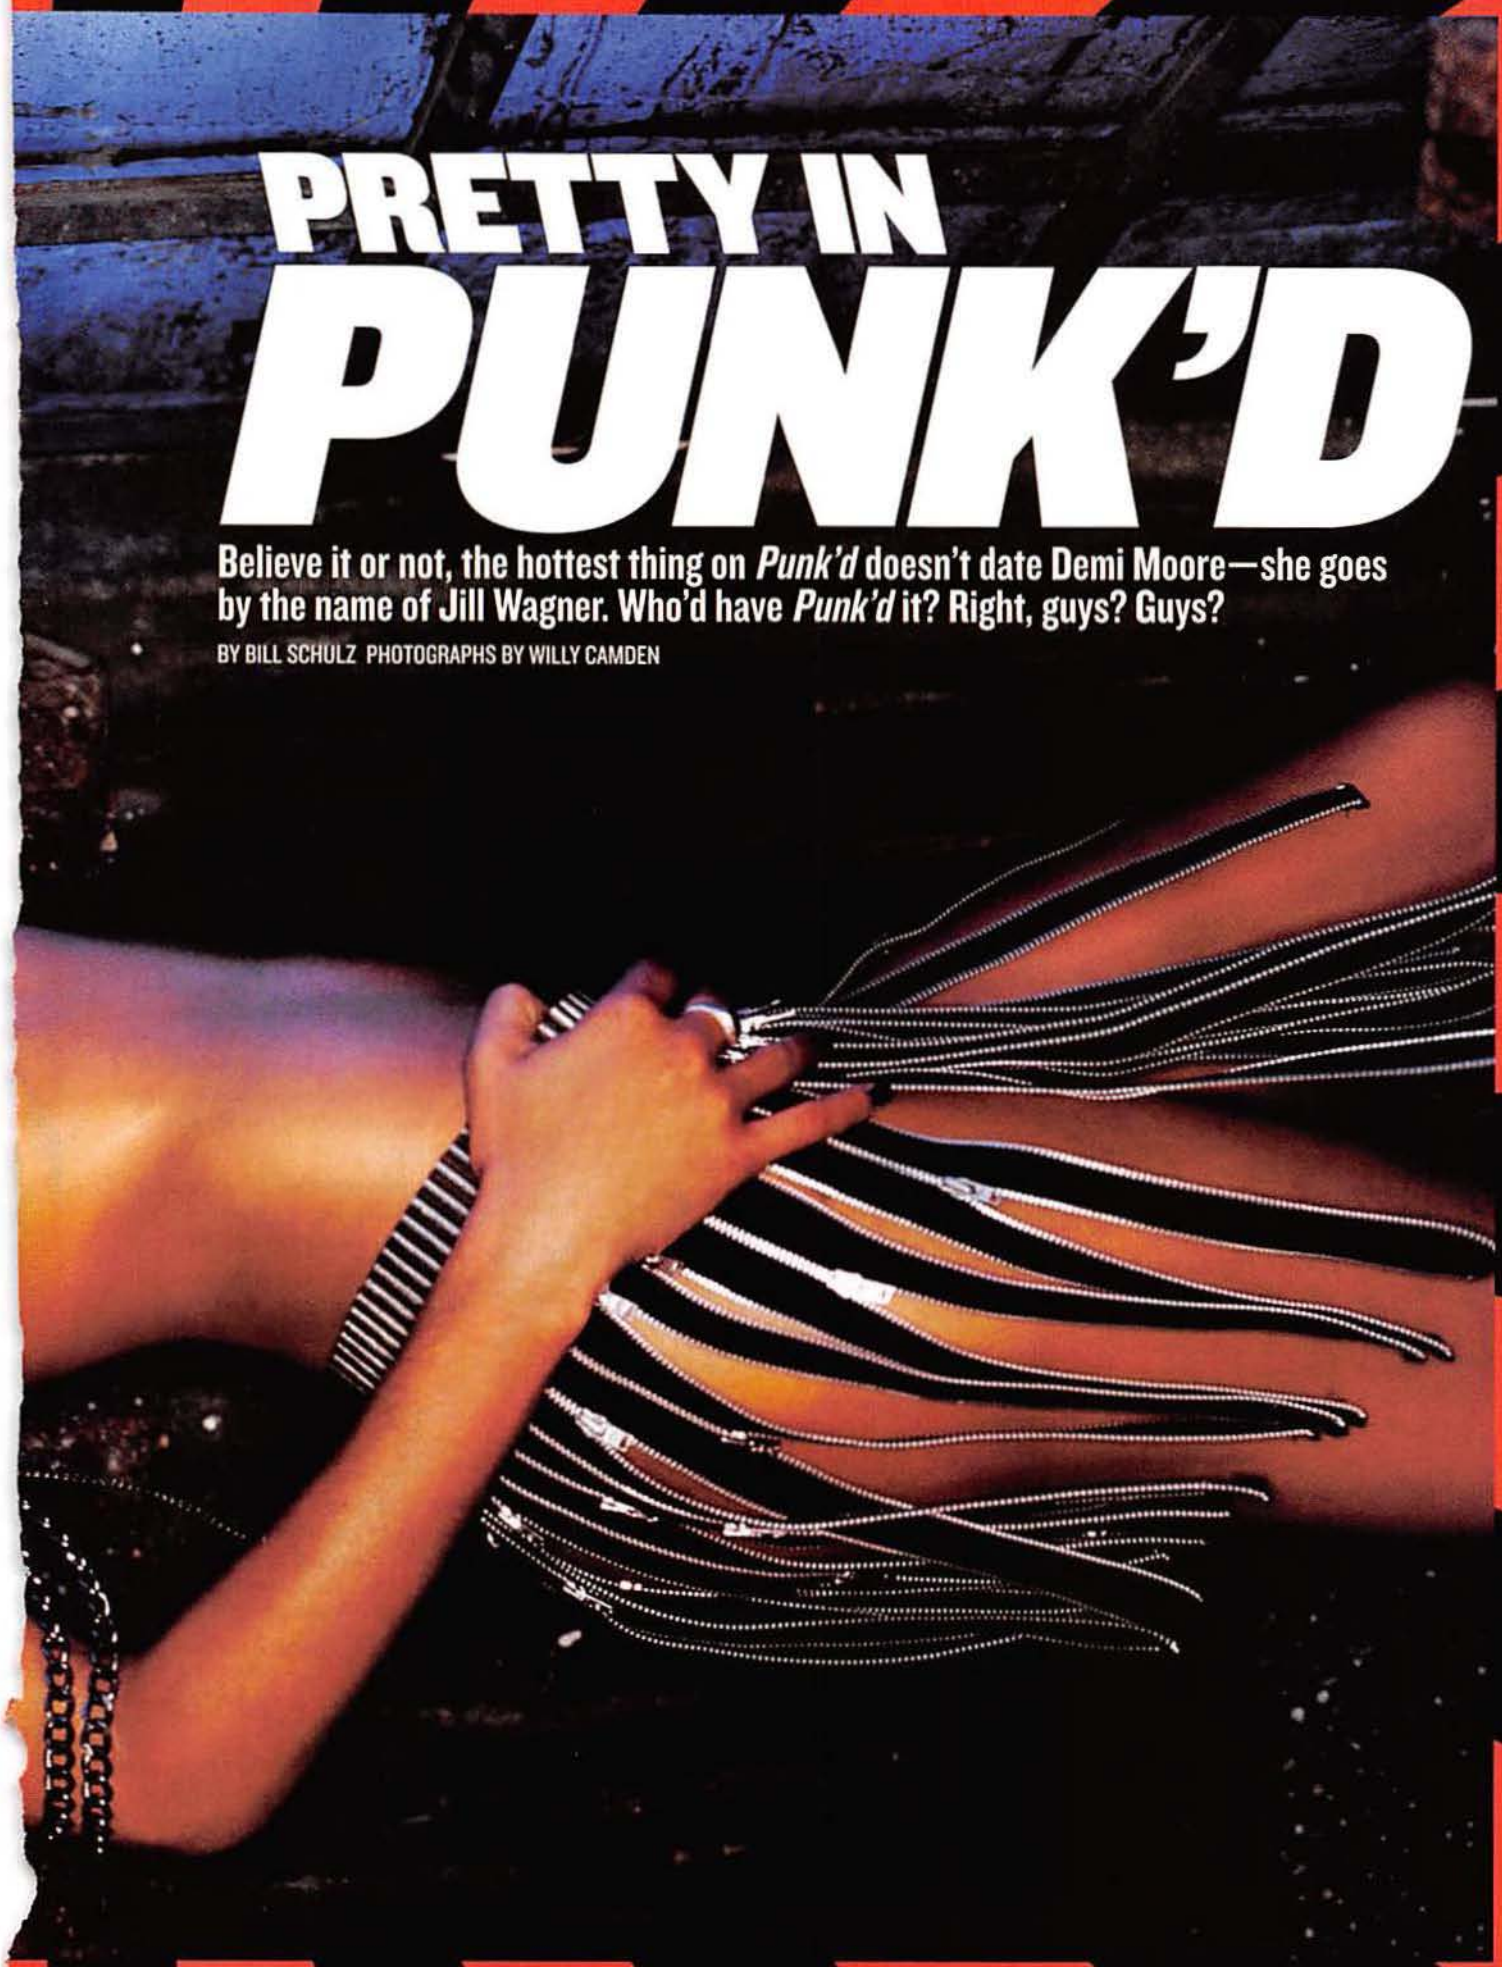
PRETTY IN PUNK'D

Believe it or not, the hottest thing on Punk'd doesn't date Demi Moore—she goes by the name of Jill Wagner. Who'd have Punk'd it? Right, guys? Guys?

BY BILL SCHULZ PHOTOGRAPHS BY WILLY CAMDEN



Never punk a punkster. Particularly a pretty one. This is a lesson yours truly learned after playing a harmless prank on Punk'd star Jill Wagner. Perhaps it's because the fib had to do with the North Carolina native's boss, Ashton Kutcher, as well as the fact that Punk'd is the twentysomething bombshell's first real gig. All I know is, after I gave this luscious liar a dose of her own medicine, I made a very real proposal of marriage, but I don't think she took me seriously. But that's good news for you lads, because it means jokin' Jill is still single. In this here interview, she expounds on older men, intercourse injuries and Ashton's distaste for the letter e. Oh, and by the by: seven. That's how many variations of the word punk'd have appeared in this piece so far. And there are 10 more to go!

STUFF: What in God's name was Tommy Lee doing hanging out with Backstreet Boy Nick Carter in episode two?
JILL: That was my first question. When Nick Carter rolled up, I was like, what is he doing there? And they were like, "Well, he's punking Tommy Lee." I think they're working together. But that is the weirdest couple I've ever seen.

I'm told Tommy came to his morning punk looking a bit drunk.
I don't know if he was drunk. I never got that close to him. I don't think you ever know if he's drunk or not. He's a rock star. He can do whatever the hell he wants to.

Is he still not allowed to imbibe? Something to do with Pamela Anderson and a restraining order?
They're back together anyway, so who cares about that?

Not me. Has anyone told Ashton that those trucker hats have got to go? That trend ended as soon as it began.
I'll totally make fun of anybody else, except for Ashton. He can wear one for the rest of his life and I'll think it's cute. But it's a total fashion disaster, and I hate those things.

Has anyone ever caught on that they were being punk'd?
I don't think [MTV releases] that information, but I've never heard about it. Not anytime I've been on set. I'm so good that no one has caught on to me. Of course, they always say, "I knew I was getting punk'd." It never fails. And I'm like, "Well, that's really funny, because you didn't seem to think so when you were crying."

When is somebody going to punk Ashton? I know the crew tried and failed last season.
I think that it's not too far away. I think he needs to watch his back.

So there have been other attempts?
I'm not saying.

Do you think the whole Ashton-and-Demi thing is purely sexual?
I would hope so! That would be fun. I think they're both just really fun people who enjoy each other's company.

How about yourself? Any ground rules on age when it comes to dating?
No. When I was 19, I dated a guy for three years who was 34. I'm from the South. At first, my dad wanted to shoot him. But he was a lot like my dad. I know that's weird.

I could psychoanalyze the shit out of that statement.
[Laughs] "She is in love with her dad." He's a great guy, and my dad really got along with him—probably because they were closer in age than we were. I have a God-given talent for snagging old guys.

So what's your reaction to the New York Post breaking the news that Demi is pregnant with Ashton's child? Apparently, both camps confirmed the announcement.
No! You just broke the news to me! I can't believe that. Is this on E!? Maybe it's a big punk? That's horrible [if it is]—they should not do that to people.

Are you happy for them?
More power to them. The more babies, the merrier.

Uh, Jill? I just punk'd you.
Shut up! I'm calling Ashton, and we're going to have it out for you for the rest of the season. That was really funny of you. Doesn't it feel good?

I'm unable to feel. Has a sleazy star ever hit on you?
Yeah, but I can't tell you [who it was]. It's a secret, because he's engaged right now.

Well, give me the story sans names.
If I told you how it went down, you'd know [who it is]. Put it this way: He's in the entertainment field, but he's—

Harvey Weinstein!
How did you know? Actually, he's in music, which is hot to me.

I've got a wife and kids to feed, and this scoop could really help me out. Can you at least tell me how he hit on you?
That would give it away! I know that sounds weird, but it totally would.

Come on. At the very least, this nameless musician will be happy that you're confirming he's straight.
I didn't say he's straight at all! I know for a fact that he's kind of wobbling on that line right now. It's just something that industry insiders, namely one of my best friends, would know. Because one of her friends had an experience with him.

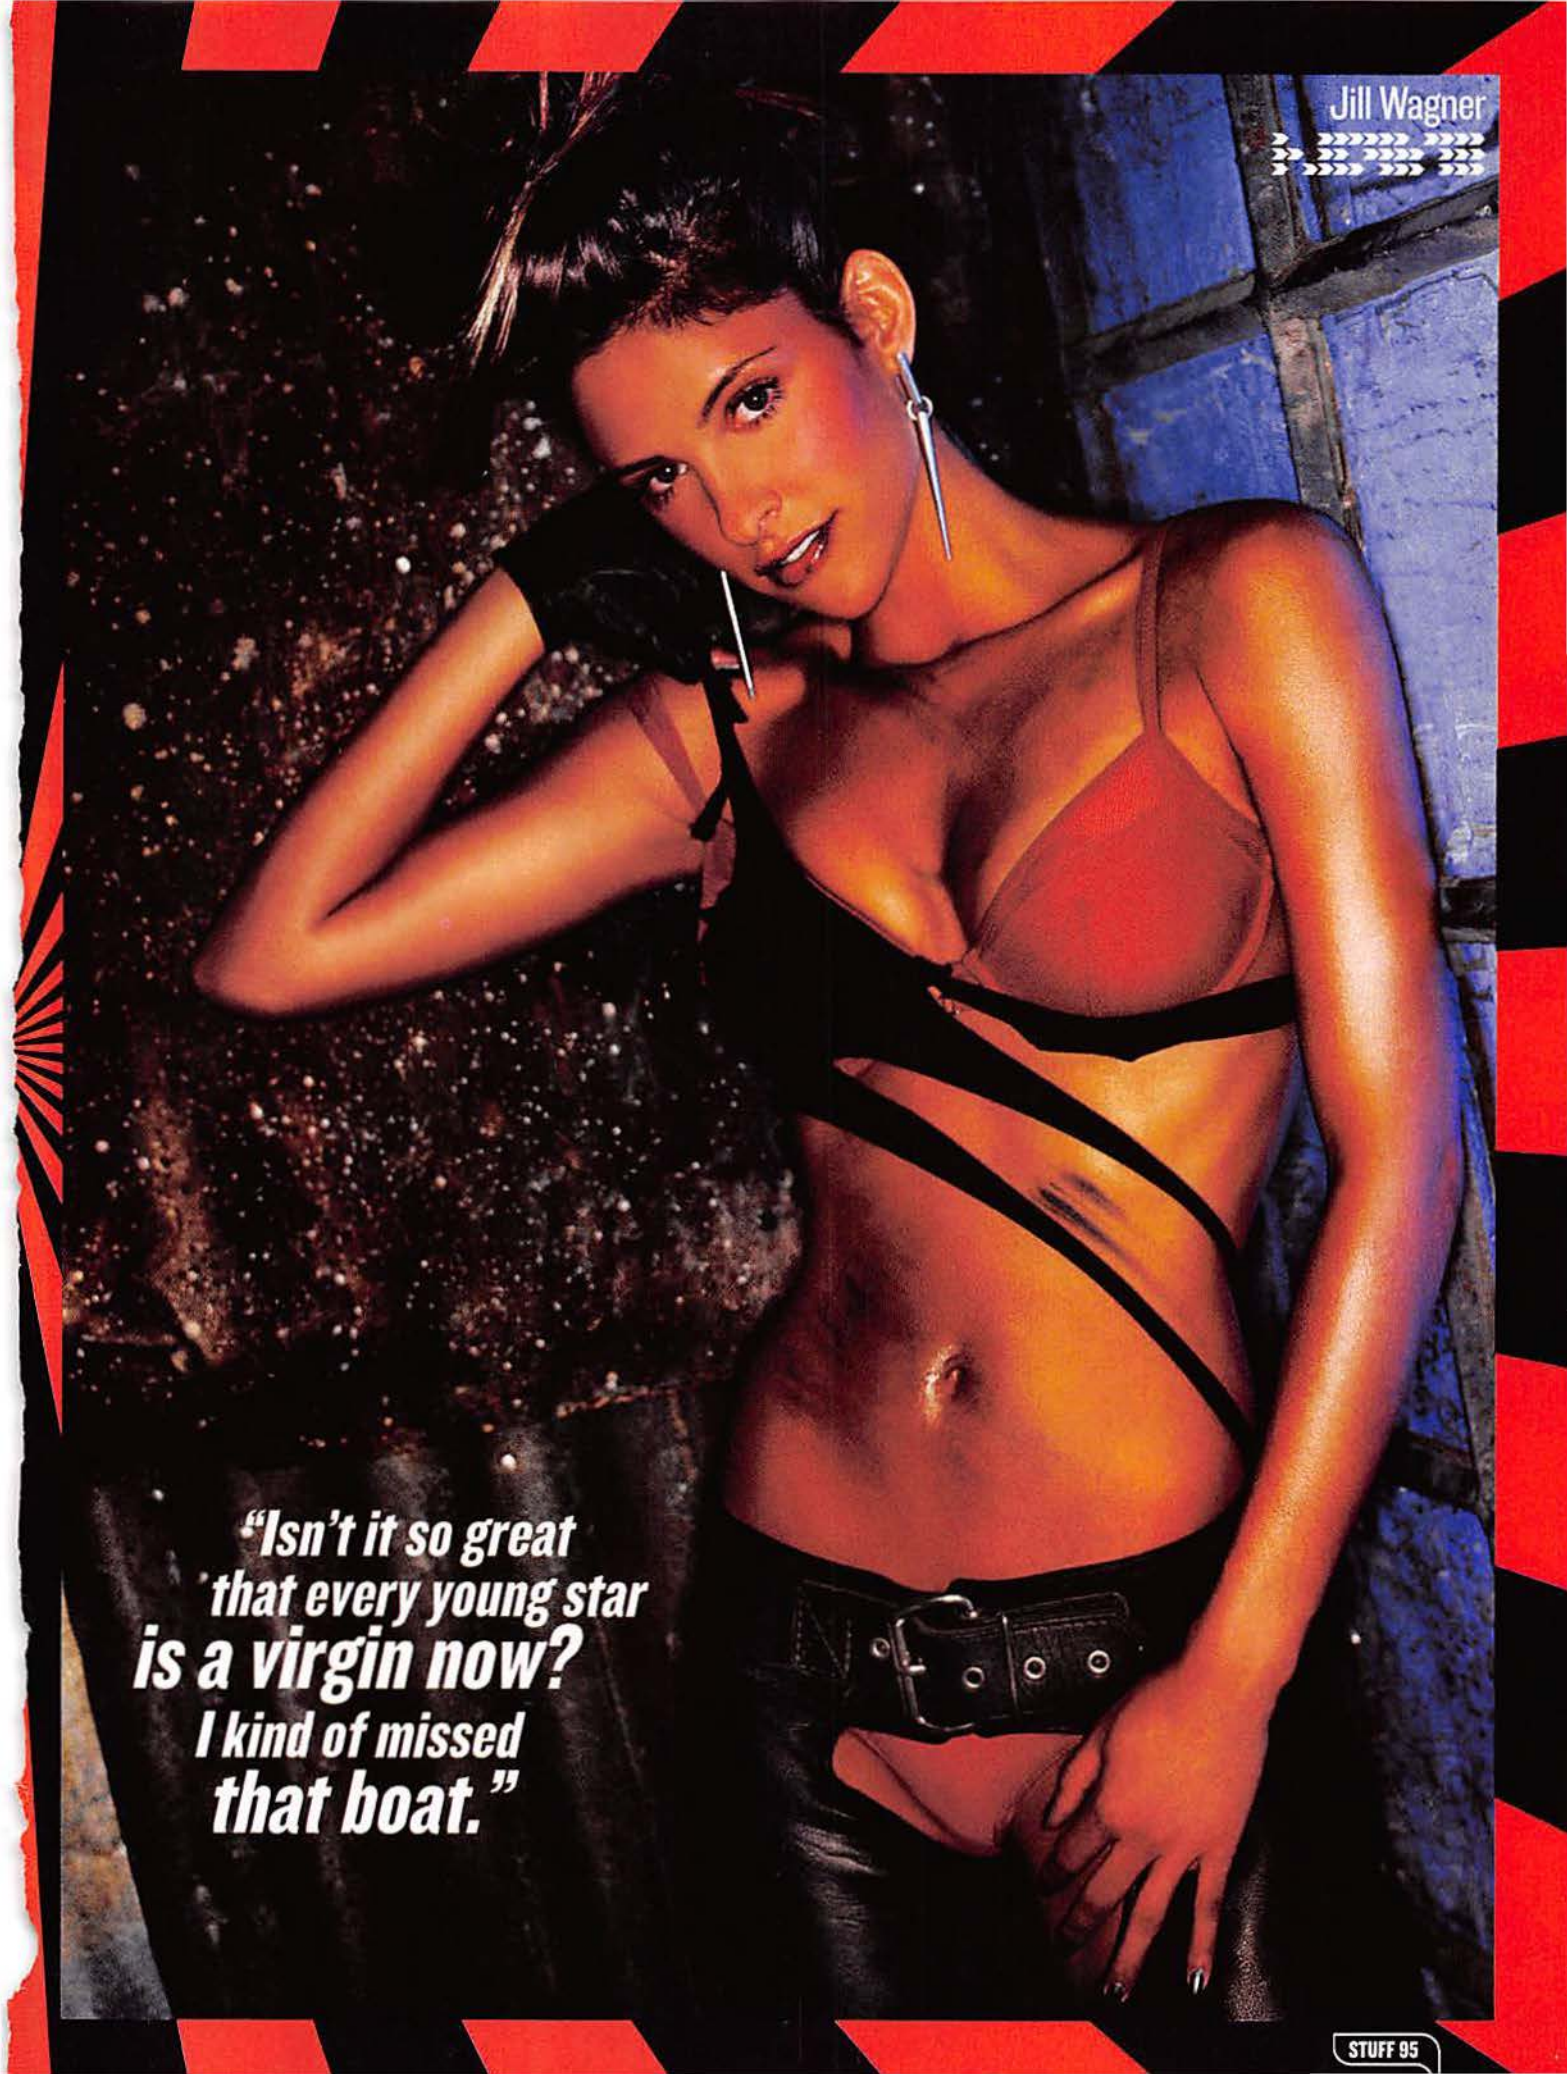
But that confirms his straightness.
I didn't say that one of her friends was a girl. This gets deeper and darker.

Does the lack of an e in the show's title set a poor example for our nation's youth? Has MTV gotten any angry letters from teachers?
If they did, they didn't show them to me, because I could care less. It's Ashton's word—he came up with it. It's probably going to be in the dictionary.

Your Punk'd predecessor, Dax, was big into nudity. Would you take the plunge should a prank call for it?
Ashton and I would have to talk cash. It'd all come down to cold, hard cash.

So you get a bonus and the crew gets an eyeful.
They need a little fun and light in their days, you know?

Have you ever been punk'd in the sack?
Who said I've ever had sex? Oh, God, I'm not going to even play that card. Isn't it so great that every young star is a virgin now? I kind of missed that boat. For God's sake, I had a boyfriend of 34. ▷▷▷



Jill Wagner
"Isn't it so great that every young star is a virgin now? I kind of missed that boat."

You haven't answered my question.
Oh, my God. My grandmother's going to read this! OK...I fell off the bed. I really did fall off the bed. God love our souls when we fall off the bed and we keep going. The even better part is if we fall off the bed and we don't laugh. But it hurt. I had to go to the hospital.

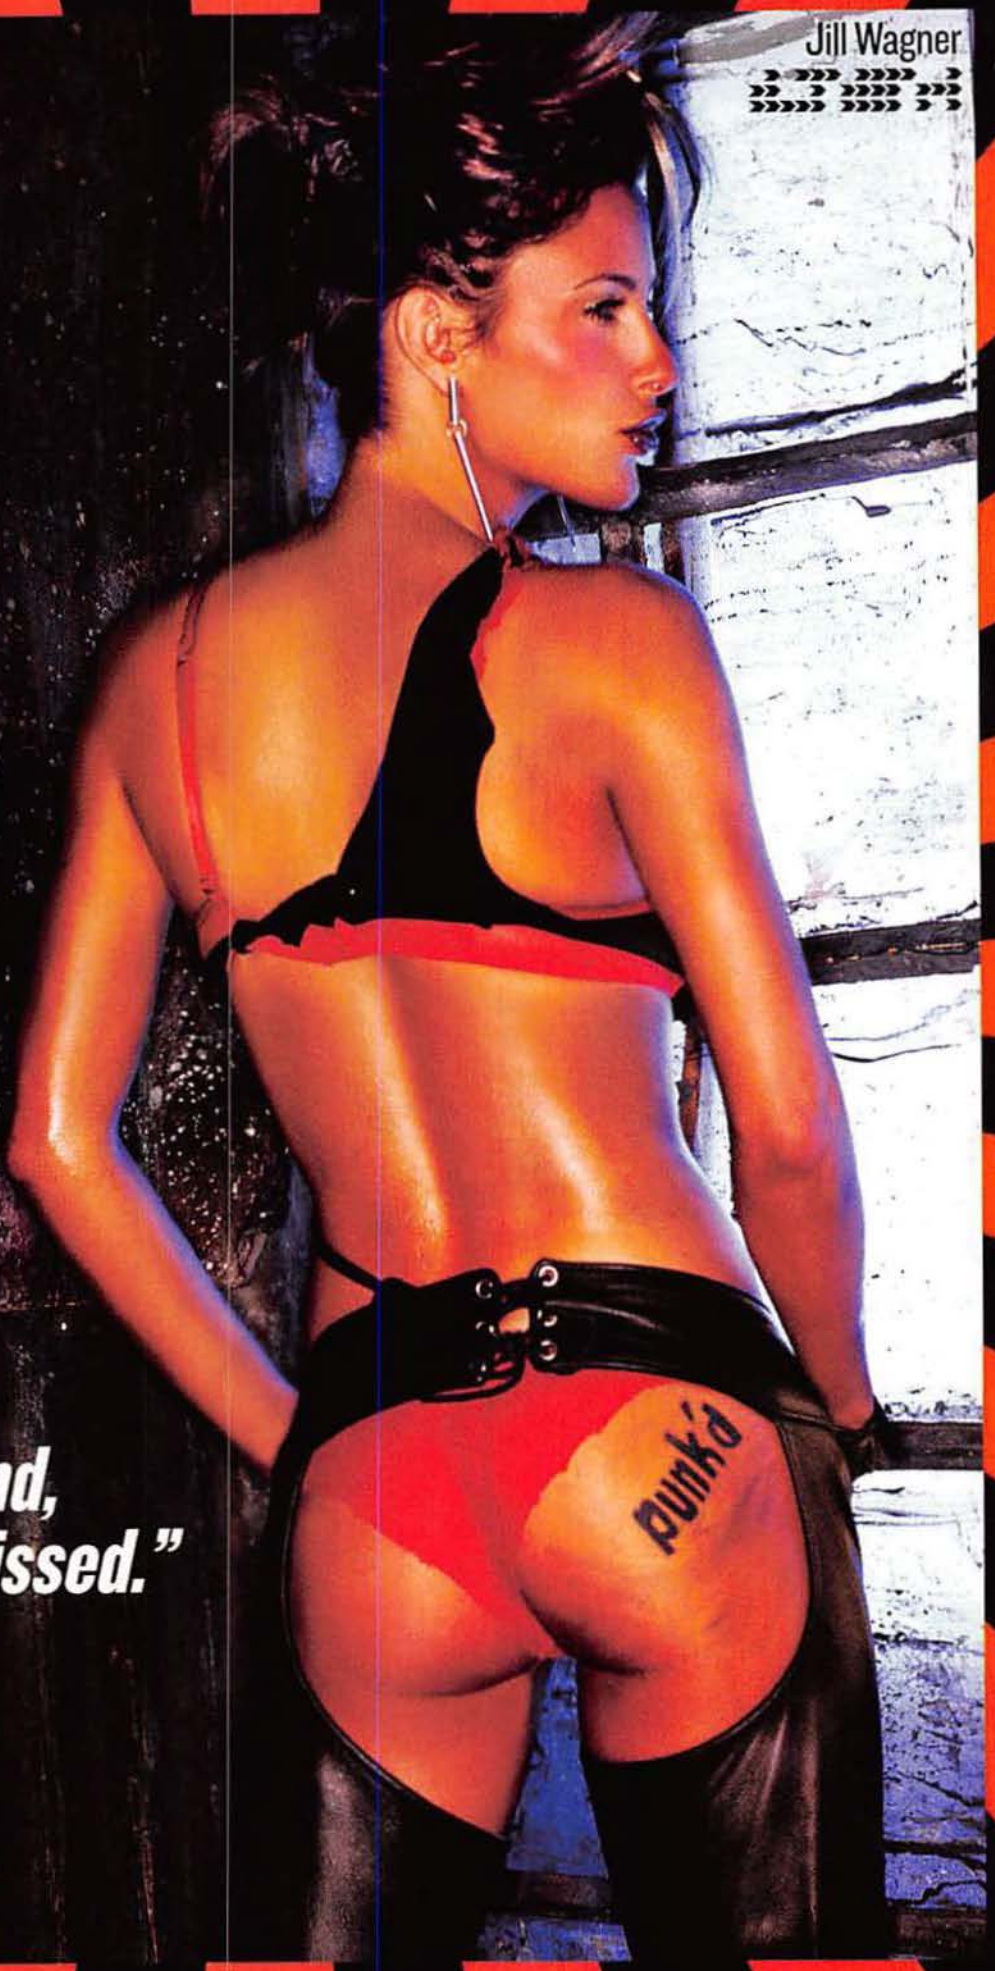
Hospital? Now you're funning with me. Have you ever punk'd a lover by way of faking an orgasm?
No. I would never have to. I'm never with anybody I have to fake it with. I'm not that nice. I'm not going to fake anything. Who does that benefit? It's all about me. I'm just very self-centered like that.

One-night stands: Depends on the situation or leads to damnation?
Depends on the situation. I've never had a one-night stand, and I'm pissed. There's something dark and mysterious and appealing about it. Guys can always talk about one-night stands, but girls never can.

I think we should start dating. Your thoughts on this proposal?
So, are you going to come here, or am I going to go there?

Eh, I'm a beggar, not a chooser—it's your call. Either way, think how cute "Jill and Bill" will look on our wedding announcement.
It would be so cute. We're going to hyphenate, though.

I'll take your last name. Bill Wagner. That might help you a little bit more at this point in the game.



"I've never had a one-night stand, and I'm pissed."

the inside story on Great Sex!

Learning "The Ropes"...

This month I got a letter from a reader in Texas about a "little secret" that has made her sex life with her husband absolutely explosive. (Those Texans know their stuff, let me tell you.)

Tina writes:

Dear Jamie,

Last month my husband returned from a business trip in Europe, and he was hotter and hornier than ever before, with more passion than he has had for years. It was incredible. He flat wore me out! And the best part of all—he was having multiple orgasms. I know what you're thinking... men don't have multiples, but trust me he was, and his newfound pow! pow! power! stimulated me into the most intense orgasms I've ever had. So, before we knew it, we were both basking in the glow of the best sex of our lives!

We tried tantric stuff in the past, and the results were so-so. But this was something new and exciting, completely out of the ordinary. I asked my husband what had created such a dramatic change in our lovemaking and he told me he'd finally learned "the ropes."

On the last night of his business trip my husband spent an evening dining out with a Swedish nutritionist and his wife of 20 years. The couple was obviously still quite enamored with each other, so my husband asked their secret. The nutritionist told him their sex life was more passionate than ever. Then he pulled a small bottle from his satchel and gave it to my husband. The bottle contained a natural supplement that the nutritionist told my husband would teach him "the ropes" of good sex.

My husband takes the supplement every day. The supply from the nutritionist is about to run out and we desperately want to know how we can find more. Do you know anything about "the ropes," and can you tell us how we can find it in the States?

Sincerely,
Tina C., Ft. Worth, Texas

Tina, you and the rest of our readers are in luck, because it just so happens I do know about "the ropes" and the supplement your husband's Swedish friend likely shared.

The physical contractions and fluid release during male orgasm can be multiplied and intensified by a product called Ogöplex Pure Extract™. It's a daily supplement specially formulated to trigger better orgasmic experiences in men. The best part, from a woman's perspective, is that the motion and experience a man can achieve with Ogöplex Pure Extract can help stimulate our own orgasms, bringing a whole new meaning to the term simultaneous climax!

The term used by the Swedish nutritionist is actually fairly common slang for the effect your husband experienced. The enhanced contractions and heightened orgasmic release are often referred to as ropes because of the rope-like effect of release during climax. In other words, as some people have said, "it just keeps coming and coming and coming."

As far as finding it in the States, I know of just one importer—Böland Naturals. If you are interested, you can contact them at 1-866-ogoplex or ogoplex.com. Ogöplex is all-natural and safe to take. All the people I've spoken with have said taking the once-daily tablet has led to the roping effect Tina described in her letter.

Aren't you glad you asked?

Tommy lockers

If there's one thing Tommy Hilfiger loves, it's working out. At least, that's the conclusion we've jumped to based on this retro-style duffel bag ($50) he designed, which has perforations to air out unmentionables. One thing Tommy Hilfiger hates is assumptions. And when we call him Tom. tommy.com

Fast Forward

New looks from ahead of the curve.

BY JONATHAN STERN PHOTOGRAPHS BY ALEX CAO

Less dress shoe

Although we are permitted to wear argyle socks on casual Fridays, we seldom actually do so, because formal attire is the only thing that makes sense to us in this crazy world. These Diesel Footwear suede Ash shoes ($170) are designed to be worn with formal clothing yet still maintain a relaxed attitude. That's because they're lined with three-quarter leather. The last quarter is for fun! But not too much fun. 877-737-5389

Tight stripes

Sandy Koufax was possibly the greatest pitcher ever. (Take that, ghost of all-time-winningest pitcher Cy Young!) Anyway, both Koufax and ol' Cy would have looked great in this DJU pinstripe baseball jacket ($70). Unfortunately, its classic collegiate style and bright, colorful patches would have scared the bejesus out of those two. They were strictly into earth tones. Dr. Jay's, NYC

Fancy pants

With the exception of our bionic leg, these new ProStyle cargo pants ($58) from Dockers are the most technologically advanced item below our waist. They are stain-repellent, wrinkle-free and won't fade in the wash. Uh-oh! Looks like this is the end of the road for you, Mr. All Tempa-Cheer. dockers.com

Crush groove

Liz Claiborne Curve Crush for Men cologne spray ($48) has a lovely, androgynous aroma of fresh-brewed ginger and basil—for those times when you're disgusted with the opposite sex and just want to cuddle up with some fresh veggies. Department stores nationwide

Keen jean

Unlike our brief stint with red bandannas and ripped jeans, this stone-washed Arizona Jean denim jacket ($45) won't be mocked by our classmates at Salisbury Middle School. Because it's rad. And because we're, like, 20 years older than they are. JCPenney stores

That's Italian!

Nothing is more Italian than this Orologi watch ($195) from Emporio Armani. Its classic style will instantly transport you to Venice. Marvel at its genuine ostrich-leather strap and quartz movement. Now marvel that a watch took you to Italy. emporioarmani.com

Second (pig)skin

Cotton, you may be the fabric of our lives, but you can't handle our perspiration problem. So in the meantime, we're having a torrid affair with this Reebok NFL-branded tight-fit shirt ($28), which is made of smooth Spandex. All of this could have been yours, cotton, but you were too obstinate to care. 800-733-2651

Superstar

In our book, every basketball player is a star, but only the brightest of them will play in the 2004 NBA All-Star Game in Los Angeles. And if they're Reebok shills, they'll wear these NBA Hesitation All-Star sneakers ($90). The other players will wear nonhesitating shoes, which is good. Or bad. We think. reebok.com

WARDROBE RENOVATION

This reader spends his days and nights writing about what it's like to be a poor writer. We couldn't care less, because we have jobs. But his Seinfeld costume was getting worn out, so we gave him new clothes.

THE HOTTEST GIRLS ON THE BLOCK

We asked you to pick the most beautiful women on the planet, and you did. Thanks! That cookie we promised you is in the mail. BY LAURA LEU PHOTOGRAPHS BY HAITEM

THE WINNER'S CIRCLE

A few months ago, someone in our office was sober and in a rare moment of clarity said, "Hey, instead of just asking women on the streets of New York to let us look at them sans clothing, why not ask girls from other parts of the country, too?" After immediately firing him and taking credit for his idea, we implemented the plan and were inundated with 1,600-plus skintastic Kodak moments. We chose the best 20 and asked you to vote for your favorite at StuffMagazine.com. More than 50,000 of you answered our call. The rest of you were apparently washing your hair that night. The five winners were so hot, we thought they deserved their own cover treatment. And a massage! (They settled for the cover thing and promised not to prosecute.)

DOUBLE YOUR PLEASURE

Seeing double? For once, it's not because of your glaucoma. This month, Stuff sexologist Dawn Yanek uncovers everything that's naughty and nice about twins. What you learn may mean lots more sex for you. So rest up! PHOTOGRAPHS BY STEFAN NYVANG

More is better. It just is. I'm an American, and I've been trained to think this way. So it's not fair that I'm not a twin. If there were two of me, I'd get more done, I'd have sex while my other half met a deadline or two, and I'd have Wonder Twin powers. Form of an ice bucket! Or, form of sexy stranger who tests boyfriends and lures them into trouble! Going over to the dark side would be inevitable. But fun!

Instead, I gathered three sets of gorgeous twins to: a) stoke all those depraved fantasies you've been harboring and b) give you some practical information should you ever be lucky enough to meet a pair of pretty sisters. Oh, and let's not forget c): Take the rules you learn here and apply them to any woman you meet...for twice the sex and half the headaches. (You may want to use a calculator.)

DAWN: As twins, you are very much an object of the male imagination. Divulge your fantasies, and let's see if any of them match our readers' ideas.

LAURA: You're both dressed up and you're going to this big party. On the way up in the elevator, he says, "You look so good tonight," and you push the emergency button and go for it. But some guys try that the first night they meet you, and that's not the right time.

LINDSAY: My fantasy came true. These guys took Ally and me to this mountain resort, way up in the woods. There was a hot tub under a glass ceiling and you could see the stars, and candles were all over the place. It was really romantic. It wasn't all of us together, though, so it was nothing weird.

Styling: Nicole Schneider @ Trooper Hart. Bruin Magazines @ aartistlch.com. Makeup: Barta @ Bernstein & Andriulli. For clothes, see the Credits page. Special thanks to Debbie and Lisa Ganz at TwinsWorld.com

Take your time. It's going to happen. What's 10 more minutes?

JESSIE: Nothing too romantic or it can seem cheesy. I read some magazine that said to put rose petals on top of the ceiling fan, and right as you're ready to get intimate, you flip on the fan and petals fall down on you. If a guy did that, I'd be like, "Get the fuck out of here!" or "Wait—something's falling on me!"

DAWN: Guys probably can't look at you together without thinking, Threesome! Is three ever your favorite number?

LEESA: How wonderful would it be to have two beautiful men pleasing a woman? But with twins, no. That's disgusting.

JESSIE: Guys will say, "Oh, we want to see you make out with your sister." And I'll say, "Do you want to make out with your brother?"

LAURA: We know twin guys who said they've shared a woman, and I was like, "How could you see him naked doing that?" What if you hear something that your twin says in the moment, and you're like, "Ew, you like that?" It's too weird!

DAWN: If a guy brings up the subject of threesomes, even in a jokey way, does he ruin any chance he might have had with you?

JESSIE: Yes. So will: "Are you guys the same...in every way?"

BECKY: Also, a guy will sometimes come up and talk to me and then want to buy me a drink. If I'm not interested, he'll turn to my sister and ask if she's interested.

LAURA: Or, "What would be the chances of all three of us getting together?"

LEESA: And we say, "Sure! When? We always share." They don't know what to say, so they leave. We've freaked out so many guys.

DAWN: What will earn a man brownie points when you first meet? Aside from actually baking brownies.

LEESA: Guys forget the simplest things, like introducing themselves. I'd say 75 percent forget, especially in New York.

LAURA: I like if they notice what we're talking about and add something to the conversation. That means they were paying attention before they approached us. They weren't just staring at us, like, "Oh, my God—twins!"

ALLYSON: I met a guy at a bar who asked me real questions about myself and my family—he wasn't just trying to take me home. But then he text-messaged me a few days later and told me to go outside...where there were a dozen roses on my truck. That was kind of a turnoff, because it was just too fast.

DAWN: Ever dated the same guy?

BECKY: No. People always ask if we switch on our boyfriends. I'm like, "Um, I don't want my boyfriend kissing her."

JESSIE: And my sister would know that was my boyfriend—it's not like they're twins.

DAWN: Is one of you the naughtier twin?

LAURA: I think it depends on the person we're with.

LEESA: My ex was very shy sexually, and I would introduce things in bed and make him blush. One day, he gave me a bag and said, "I have a gift for you." It was liquid latex, and he was like, "We can paint each other and peel it off!" He was so not like that, and it was awesome. That's what I want: somebody who makes me blush sometimes, too.

LAURA: I was at a club with a boyfriend, and he was like, "I want you right here." But we were both kind of germophobic, so we did it while driving home.

BECKY: People say Jessie [is naughtier], but I don't know. We get each other into trouble.

DAWN: Sounds like the perfect balance. What will keep men out of trouble with you?

BECKY: When I came home from a long day at work, my boyfriend told me to lie down, close my eyes and take off my shoes ▷▷▷

Randy the Helpful Pineapple says:
"FYI! Either the Lovely Dawn's schizophrenia has manifested itself or this image has been digitally altered. Either way, there are now two Dawns—one is good, and the other is evil, much like K.I.T.T.'s evil twin, K.A.R.R., on Knight Rider. I know he was bad, but he was just dreamy!"

THE POWDER ROOM

The Bathroom Tapes

It's not polite to eavesdrop on women's private conversations, so we decided to act like gentlemen and focus on their privates. Then we got beat up. While we were healing, we changed our minds and recorded these rest-room chats.

Girl 1: That guy is gorgeous!
Girl 2: But a jerk. Know what he said to me? "You're such a cutie. I just wanna fillet you with my tongue."
Girl 1: [Laughs] That's so funny! What'd you say?
Girl 2: I don't think that's funny. I think he's a freak. And it's too bad, because I would've gone for him if he'd said something normal.
Girl 1: Oh, who cares. Just hook up with the guy. He's hot.
Girl 2: How do you even respond to that? I told him that was vulgar and walked away. I should've slapped him.
Girl 1: He sounds like the kind of guy who would've liked that.
Girl 2: And I would've enjoyed doing it.
Girl 1: Well, let's go back. Maybe he'll say something stupid again and we can both slap him.

TAPE 2: THE BEST-LAID PLANS

Girl 1: Is it normal for guys to whack off if they're dating someone?
Girl 2: Yeah. Russell* says guys do it more when they're getting sex, 'cause they're thinking about it more.
Girl 1: I'd think they'd wanna store it up for you.
Girl 2: I'd think they could recover in time.
Girl 1: I get so mad when Mark does it the same day I'm going over. I'm like, "Can't you just wait?" To play it safe, I think I'm going to invest in Viagra and keep some in my purse.
Girl 2: Nothing like a good plan.

TAPE 3: TAKING A DIGITAL DUMP

Girl 1: He never called?
Girl 2: No, the prick. He sent an e-mail to cancel only two hours from the time he was supposed to pick me up.
Girl 1: Did you call him?
Girl 2: No, and I didn't e-mail him back. I mean, how'd he even know if I'd get the e-mail? I told him I'd be out all day. What if I'd gotten dressed and waited for him without checking?
Girl 1: What are you going to do if he calls next week?
Girl 2: Tell him he's a creep. I don't have patience for guys like that. I'd rather stay home and knit than waste my time.
Girl 1: With all the creeps out there, we could end up with a lot of great sweaters.

I like when we're in bed and he squeezes me with his whole body. I like being wrapped up in him.

and socks. Then he massaged my feet for, like, an hour. Another guy would open my car door all the time and clean his car before he picked me up. It's not all about ass. You have to do those things if you're gonna get it.

DAWN: Speaking of ass, what should a guy do once he sees yours, in order to double the pleasure in bed?

ALLYSON: My ex gave me a full-body massage with oil and kissed me all over. Then I did the same to him. It was awesome. Sex is so much better when you build up to it.

LINDSAY: I love when a guy runs his hands through my hair or grabs my chin and kisses me. I'd rather do that than have wild sex all night, to be honest.

JESSIE: I like a lot of contact—his body moving with mine. He's doing things to let me know that he's enjoying himself, and he's paying attention to me.

LEESA: I like when someone squeezes me extra tight or lifts me up really fast. It's passionate. It's also good if we're in bed and we're wrapped up together and he squeezes me with not only his arms but his whole body. I like being wrapped up in him.

LAURA: When you're fooling around and he moves you to roll over and it's a fluid movement—you actually feel like you're floating. Also, I like when he can't keep his hands in one spot. It's like acknowledging and appreciating every part of my body and not wanting to leave anything out.

DAWN: What should be left out of all sexual experiences?

BECKY: One guy stuck his tongue down my throat and slobbered all over me—I had to stop dating him.

ALLYSON: Guys just want to sleep after they get off, but it can be like, "What about me?" I always feel too shy to say anything.

LEESA: You can only really talk dirty with your boyfriend if you're doing role-play or something cheesy, because you're being silly. Like if you're in a bar and you pretend you don't know each other. I did that, and it was fun. You always have to keep it interesting.

BECKY: I don't like dirty talk. I can't say certain words, and I don't want them to be said to me, even in the heat of the moment. I hate any word for the penis, really, and the v-word.

DAWN: Ah, you must mean valentine. Do you have any tips to help our readers pick out the right booty for this holiday, so that they can get some for themselves?

LEESA: If a guy brings me sunflowers on Valentine's Day, I melt. I'm just like, "Ohhh, you remembered!"

LAURA: I don't like the typical things. It doesn't have to be on a special day, either. One guy would say, "I passed this store and was like, 'Oh, this is so Laura.'" One time, he got me a little sculpture with monkeys—I love monkeys.

DAWN: Who doesn't love monkeys? How do you feel about getting lingerie? Or monkeys in lingerie?

BECKY: I've never gotten lingerie. Most guys don't know how to undress a girl, so why am I going to spend a hundred dollars on something when they're going to rip it off? That's a big thing: Take your time. It's going to happen. What's 10 more minutes?

DAWN: Less than 11 minutes.

MAXŌDERM™

(Vasotran Auctum™) topical lotion

Improve. Increase. Enjoy.

Experience the Unbelievably Enhanced Sensation!

Feels Great!

The ONLY PATENT PENDING, self-pleasuring product on the market that actually improves erection size... by up to 31%!

SATISFACTION MONEY BACK GUARANTEED

Maxomize Your Performance

MAXŌDERM™ is the ONLY sexual performance product of its kind that is scientifically engineered with VASOTRAN AUCTUM™, a patent pending formula that uses TRANSDERMAL DELIVERY to create an instantaneous effect on erection size. MAXŌDERM™'s VASODILATION properties immediately open vessels and capillaries to increase blood flow to the penis. It's exhilarating sensation is delivered through an Aloe & Vitamin E based lotion that will not only increase erection size, but will also intensify orgasms, prolong erection time, and enhance sexual stamina. You will feel an IMMEDIATE effect in literally seconds.

Maxomize Your Value

Studies have shown that when substances are taken orally, as little as 5% make it to the cells where they are needed... ONLY 5%! Looking at this from an investment standpoint, if you invest $70 - $100 on pills that claim you MAY see a result in 3-4 weeks, you are only realizing $3.50 - $5.00 of effectiveness, if at all. The rest is waste, discarded by the organs of the body. Since MAXŌDERM™ is delivered through the skin, as much as 95% of its powerful formula reaches the desired area. DON'T BE FOOLED BY CHEAP IMITATIONS AND INEFFECTIVE PILLS OR PATCHES.

"I've always considered myself to be an average guy - I have a good job and keep myself in great shape. Enhancing size and sexual performance was something I've always been interested in, I mean isn't everyone. It's not that I was small, it's just that I wanted to have a little extra size. And I'm not the most patient person in the world. I wanted a product that would work quickly. I'm happy to say that MAXODERM™ lives up to its claims. Thank you for making such a high quality product."

"THE ONLY MALE ENHANCEMENT FORMULA ON THE MARKET THAT YOU CAN ACTUALLY FEEL WORKING."

SPANK YOU VERY MUCH

Our Sex Spy goes under the covers to gather intelligence for answers to your coital questions. Warning: The following is highly sensitive and will leave you both shaken and stirred.

Introducing our new Sex Spy... infiltrating a bed near you.

My girlfriend told me that she'd like to be spanked, but I'm worried that I'll screw it up. Is there a proper way to do this? —Matt, via e-mail

Before you throw her over your knee and start playing the butt bongos, complete this assignment: Hurt a fly—with your bare hands. (Keep it top secret or PETA might be all over your ass, which would be neither attractive nor erotic. Seriously, Matt, you should consider waxing.) Flyswatting and ass smacking are very similar in practice: You need closed fingers, a flat palm and a quick release. If you slap correctly, the fly will die and your girlfriend might experience la petite mort, or "the little death," which is the expression the French use to describe an orgasm. Or the killing of a midget. However, unless the spankee is a freak of orgasmic nature, she probably won't climb Mount Yes! Yes! Yes! from spanking without any other sexual contact. But the same nerves go to all her hot spots down below, so if you smack that ass during her moaning moments, it will intensify her O to a window-rattling "Oh, my God!" Unless she's not religious, in which case, you may hear something like, "I don't believe in deities or other transcendent beings to explain what I don't understand, but I do like the spanking." Or some such.

I've heard of people who are into "shrimping." What the hell is it? —D.J., via e-mail

I infiltrated the world of foot fetishists and discovered that shrimping is code for toe sucking. That's because there's a close resemblance between the pink crustaceans and humans' toes. (Apparently, Chee-to'ing was already trademarked.) And footplay doesn't stop at shrimping. There's toe 69'ing (for those who like to give toe simultaneously), toe sniffing (for those who get off on eau de toe) and foot bondage (for S&M aficionados who enjoy tying up their partners' bad little piggies). But shrimping tends to be the most popular practice, and for good reason: It's an oral-sex preview. Give a girl good toe, and she'll see what you're capable of when you head north, while visions of fellatio will simultaneously dance in her head. So suck, lick and nibble. Leave no toe unyearned, no sole unkissed. And if you come across too-ticklish toes, try massaging them first. The rubbing will relax her feet, prepping them for the oral action to come. Or for marathons, if she's into that kind of sick stuff.

How can I get my girlfriend to go down on me without having to reciprocate? —Jim, via e-mail

Easy! Have your jaw wired shut. If you're not willing to drink your chimichangas through a straw, consider the following: Most girls follow a coital code, giving you free head for bad days, birthdays and job promotions. Then there's period week. Sure, it's filled with moodiness and bloated body parts, but it can also be an oral-sex gold mine. Add up all those days and you're looking at a potential 88 days a year of fellatio freebies—or, mathematically speaking, a 24 percent chance. Increase those odds by boosting her ego weekly and telling her how amazing she is at going down. Another trick is doing something sweet and unexpected for her. The carnal compensation for sending flowers is a hand down your pants at most, so be original: Bake her brownies, do her laundry or scrub the tub. If you do one nice thing per week, your oral odds can increase to 38 percent. You now have a good chance of getting half a 69, so it'll be tough for you to blow it. And for her not to. —Laura Leu

FOR 39TH & SIXTH, LETTERS, STUFF PICKS AND BAR SHOTS COMPETITION RULES

PLEASE SEE COMPLETE OFFICIAL RULES ONLINE AT Stuff magazine .com

STUFF*'S TICKET TO RIDE SWEEPSTAKES. OFFICIAL RULES—NO PURCHASE REQUIRED. HOW TO ENTER: Sweepstakes will run from 12:01 A.M. Eastern Time ("ET") on January 6, 2004 through 11:59 PM ET on March 15, 2004 (the "Sweepstakes Period"). During the Sweepstakes Period, to enter, follow the links at StuffMagazine.com to the Sweepstakes page to reach the official entry form. Then fill in your name, home address, e-mail address, date of birth, and hit the SEND button. Only one entry per person and per e-mail address will be accepted. Duplicate entries will be void. In the event of conflict, prize will be awarded to the owner of the e-mail address. Entries generated through the use of automated entry devices, script, macro or programs is prohibited. Any attempts to access the site via a bot script or other brute-force attack will result in that IP address becoming ineligible for the entire Sweepstakes. Every submission must be manually keystroked and manually entered by the individual participant and repetitive automated electronic submission of entries is specifically disallowed. Released Parties (as defined below) are not responsible for any incorrect or inaccurate entry information, human or other error, technical malfunction, failures, omission, interruption, deletion, or defect of any telephone network, computer online systems, computer equipment, servers, access providers, or software, including any injury or damage to participants' or any other persons' computers relating to or resulting from participation in this Sweepstakes; inability to access the entry website or any pages thereof; theft, tampering, destruction, or unauthorized access to, or alteration of entries; entry submissions that are processed late or incorrectly or are incomplete, garbled, or lost due to computer or electronic malfunction or traffic congestion on the Internet or any website. Proof of entering information at website is not considered proof of delivery or receipt. All entries become the sole property of the Sweepstakes Entities and will not be returned or acknowledged. False and/or deceptive entries or accounts shall render entry ineligible. WINNER SELECTION: One (1) Winner will be selected in a random drawing of all eligible entries received on or about March 22, 2004. Odds of winning are determined by the number of eligible entries received. ELIGIBILITY: Open to legal residents of the United States (excluding residents of Puerto Rico), 21 years of age or older as of date of entry. Employees of Dennis Stuff, Inc., MaximNet, Inc., Harley-Davidson, Inc., Harley-Davidson dealers and Carmichael Lynch, Inc. (collectively "Sweepstakes Entities"), or any of their respective parent companies, subsidiaries and affiliates, advertising and promotion agencies, and their immediate families and those living in the same household are not eligible to participate. All federal, state and local laws and regulations of the United States apply. Void in Puerto Rico and where prohibited by law. In the event that the Sweepstakes is challenged by any legal or regulatory authority, Released Parties reserve the right to discontinue or modify the Sweepstakes, or to disqualify participants residing in the affected geographic areas. In such event, Released Parties shall have no liability to any entrants who are disqualified due to such an action. By entering this Sweepstakes, entrants accept and agree to be bound by these Official Rules and the decisions of the Sweepstakes Entities, which shall be final, binding and conclusive on all matters. PRIZES/VALUES: Grand Prize (1): Winner will receive a three day/two night trip for two to Las Vegas to attend Stuff's Casino Weekend in August 2004, which includes round-trip coach air transportation for two (2) people (airline to be selected within the sole and absolute discretion of Sweepstakes Entities) from the US gateway airport closest to the Winner's home, accommodations for two nights (standard, double occupancy) at the hotel hosting Stuff's Casino Weekend, two tickets to all events at Stuff's Casino Weekend, and ground transportation between the hotel and airport. Winner will also receive a 2004 Harley-Davidson XL 883 Sportster® motorcycle. Motorcycle options to be determined by Sweepstakes Entities. Motorcycle includes the manufacturer's standard warranty, but does not include taxes, title, registration, license, tags, destination fees, dealer prep, extended warranty or insurance, delivery costs or costs of retrieval of prize, or any other cost or fee not specifically referred to herein, all of which are the responsibility of the Winner. Winner must have a valid driver's license and proof of valid insurance to take delivery. Winner is responsible to comply with all federal, state and local laws and regulations with respect to ownership of motorcycle, including but not limited to insurance requirements before prize will be awarded. Winner must take delivery of motorcycle from a dealership near winner's residence, to be determined by Sweepstakes Entities. Approximate retail value of the Grand Prize is $9,500. Actual retail value of Grand Prize may vary depending upon dates and city of departure. All expenses not specifically referred to herein shall be the responsibility of Winner. Winner and guest must travel together on the same itinerary. All federal, state and local laws and regulations apply. Taxes, if any, are solely the responsibility of the Winner. Dates of trip and travel arrangements to be selected and determined in the sole and absolute discretion of the Sweepstakes Entities, subject to availability. Winner and guest must be available to travel on any dates selected within the sole and absolute discretion of the Sweepstakes Entities pursuant to two weeks' advance notice. Blackout dates and restrictions may apply. Winner and guest are responsible for all required travel documentation. No substitution, transfer, assignment or cash equivalent of prize permitted, except that Sweepstakes Entities may substitute any prize of comparable or greater value for any reason. NOTIFICATION/TERMS: Winner will be notified by electronic mail and/or regular mail. Winner's name may also be posted at StuffMagazine.com and/or in Stuff magazine. If Sweepstakes Entities are unable to contact the potential winner to notify him/her that he/she has been selected as the potential winner, or if any notification is returned as undeliverable, for any reason beyond Sweepstakes Entities' control, the prize may be forfeited and awarded to an alternate. Winner may be required to execute and return an affidavit of eligibility/release of liability and, where legal, a publicity release so as to be received within fourteen (14) days of issuance of notification. Failure to comply with these requirements will result in the award of the prizes to an alternate. The Winner's guest must meet all eligibility requirements of this Sweepstakes, and must also execute and return an affidavit of eligibility/release of liability and publicity prior to issuance of travel documents. The return of the affidavits/releases of liability within the allotted time shall be the sole responsibility of the Winner; Sweepstakes Entities are not responsible for delays in delivery. Entry constitutes Winner's permission of Sweepstakes Entities and their designees to print and/or post the Winner's name in Stuff magazine and/or on the world wide web, and Winner's consent to use his/her name, photograph, and/or voice recordings and likenesses for advertising or publicity purposes, in all media, without additional compensation or permission, except where prohibited by law. This Sweepstakes shall be governed by and construed in accordance with New York law, and the venue for all controversies will be exclusively in state or federal court in New York, New York. All federal, state and local taxes are exclusively the responsibility of the Winner. RELEASE OF LIABILITY: All entrants including the Winner hereby release the Sweepstakes Entities and their respective parents, affiliates, subsidiaries, wholesalers, retailers, advertising and promotion agencies and each of their respective officers, directors, agents, employees and all others associated with the development and execution of this Sweepstakes (collectively, the "Released Parties") from any and all liability with respect to, or in any way arising from, this Sweepstakes and/or award, acceptance or use of the prize, including liability for personal injury, death, damages, or monetary loss, and including the risks of travel and of attendance at public events or injury or damage resulting from the use of the 2004 Harley-Davidson Sportster. PRIVACY: Any personal information supplied by entrants to MaximNet, Inc. and to Dennis Stuff, Inc. will be subject to Dennis Stuff, Inc.'s privacy policy and terms of service located at StuffMagazine.com. Additionally, by opting into specific offers from the Sweepstakes Entities, your personal information will be subject to each entity's respective privacy policies and you agree to receive additional e-mail communications from those entities. WINNER'S LIST: For the name of the winner, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Stuff*'s Ticket to Ride Sweepstakes, c/o MaximNet, Inc., 1040 Avenue of the Americas, 15th Floor, New York, NY 10018 by May 31, 2004. Sweepstakes Sponsors: The Sweepstakes Sponsors are Dennis Publishing, Inc., 1040 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10018 and MaximNet, Inc., 1040 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10018.

That '70s Showoff

Ashton Kutcher is a man of many hats. Not only is he a trucker-cap wearer, but he's also the star and executive producer of both Punk'd and the new film Butterfly Effect. Also? He happens to be referenced no less than five times in this issue. (Look, it's not like we're proud of it, all right?) Can you guess which story Demi's dawg didn't make it into?

p.40

A) HYPE MOVIES

C) ANIMAL INVASION

p.92

D) PRETTY IN PUNK'D

Answer: C. We're not saying Ashton has never played tongue hockey with a grizzly before. Just not in this photo feature.

RANDY AND PERRY p.116

The pineapple's manners are always impeccable; the pea pod's behavior is wholly regrettable.

✔ After a successful photo shoot with our 39th & Sixth winners, Randy invited the girls out for drinks at the famous New York City writer's haunt Elaine's. The pineapple refused to imbibe—he was working, after all—and behaved like the perfect gentleman, even going so far as to suggest that one of the girls switch to water after it appeared that the apple martinis she'd been drinking were starting to affect her speech.

✘ Despite not having been invited, Perry showed up for drinks anyway. In the process, he managed to charge $250 worth of liquor to Randy's expense account, urinate near a bust of the late author George Plimpton and awkwardly grope several unwilling contest winners—which is kind of impressive, given the fact that he doesn't have hands.
